NO PROFITS TO STOCKHOLDERS

Alexander Declares Surplus of Equitable Belongs to Owners of Policies.

WRITES TO WOODS

Denies He Will Resign and Says Personal Proprietary Regime Must Cease.

THINKS FUTURE ENCOURAGING

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

NEW YORK, May 7.—James W. Alexander, president of the Equitable Life Assurance society, tonight made public a letter written by him to Edward A. Woods, manager of the society at Pittsburgh, in which he asserts the surplus of the society is held for the exclusive benefit of its policy-holders and not the holders of the stock. Mr. Alexander also takes occasion in the letter to deny the rumors that he will resign.

The letter was written under date of yesterday in reply to a request from Mr. Woods for a confirmation of certain official statements made by the Equitable society regarding "the mutual plan of its business and the exclusive ownership of the policy-holders of the surplus."

Mr. Alexander says in part:

"I recognize that, for the benefit of present and future policy-holders of the society, there should be at this time some clear and unequivocal expression on this subject, and without reviewing all the society's statements on this subject, I consider that there can be no doubt as to three facts:

Conducted According to Charter.

"First, that the business of the society has been conducted in accordance with its charter, since the date of its organization, on the mutual plan; second, that the profits of the society have been accumulated for its policy-holders; and third, that the surplus of the society is held for the exclusive benefit of its policy-holders. I do not recall any serious question having ever arisen on these points until recently, when a claim has been put forward on behalf of the stockholders which is at variance with the terms of the society's charter, the uniform course of its business and all its official and unofficial statements and representations. This is not merely my own understanding and opinion, but is confirmed by Mr. Vancise, who, as you know, has been in the service of the society for nearly 40 years, most of the time as its actuary."

He then quoted from a letter written by Mr. Vancise to the society's manager at Albany in response to formal inquiries from the latter on the subject of the surplus. In this letter, under date of May 5, Mr. Vancise says:

Must Be on Mutual Plan.

"As an officer of the Equitable Life Assurance society, I fully agree with you as to the truth of the following statements in regard to the Equitable: First, that the business has always been, and must always be, conducted on the mutual plan; second, that the entire surplus belongs to policy-holders exclusively; third, that each participating policy will receive its due share of surplus profits in accordance with the terms of each contract, respectively; fourth, that the agents in soliciting business on this basis have acted with due authority; and fifth, that the policy-holders have no ground for apprehension or doubt regarding the premiums.

"In this connection, I would say that while I have been connected with the Equitable, as clerk and officer, for nearly 38 years, I have never, until recently, heard of any question being raised as to the absolute ownership of the surplus of the society by its policy-holders.

Attitude of the Founder.

"For about 30 years I had the privilege of being associated as one of the subordinate officers with Henry B. Hyde, the founder and late president of the society, and my recollection is that in his declarations, both verbal and in writing, he always stated that the business of the Equitable was transacted on the mutual plan and that the stockholders could not receive more than the dividend of $7,000 per annum on their capital stock, which was provided for by the charter.

"Mr. Hyde always directed me to apportion surplus to policy-holders, when entitled by their contracts to such apportionment on the basis of its all belonging to policy-holders, and he was very much averse to any reduction of dividends unless such reduction was found to be absolutely necessary in accordance with our experience.

"As actuary and assistant actuary of the society, I have had special charge during more than 25 years of the apportionment of surplus to holders of deferred dividend contracts at the end of their dividend periods, and in making such apportionments, I have always proceeded upon the assumption that the entire surplus of the society belonged to its policy-holders."

Should Remove All Doubts.

"These statements," continues Mr. Alexander in his letter, "are literally true. They should set at rest all doubts and quiet an agitation which should never have arisen and is naturally disturbing to the society's policy-holders and agents.

"No greater emphasis could be given to the fact that the Equitable Life Assurance society is really a mutual life insurance company, in which the interests and rights of the policy-holders are recognized as paramount, than the success of the recent effort to confer upon the policy-holders the right of electing a majority of the society's directors.

"It will follow that the personal proprietary regime within the society must succumb to the checks and restraints necessarily involved in this passage of control to the policy-holders, and many of the abuses and irregularities, which are now in course of elimination, cannot thereafter occur. It should be a source of confidence to everyone interested in

CONFUSION ATTENDING EVACUATION OF MUKDEN

Never before had the fantastically carved posts of the ancient capital of the Manchurian emperors looked upon such a strange crowd, where the subjects of an eastern and a western empire jostled each other in the endeavor to escape the army of another power which both China and Russia held but recently in the direst contempt.

MEN ARE LOSING CHICAGO STRIKE

Advantage Is Now Apparently With the Employers, Who Will Double Forces.

ORDER IS GIVEN TO SHOOT

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

CHICAGO, May 7.—After a strenuous week, during which street riots were frequent and the calling of troops seemed imminent, and at the end of which scandalous charges were made against the peace officers of Chicago, the teamsters' strike today rested at the beginning of its third week, with the employers apparently in the advantage.

The teamsters now appear to be in a position where they must either yield or decide to extend the strike by calling out thousands of other workmen engaged in affiliated unions.

The Chicago Federation of Labor today decided to withdraw labor union funds from the banks which subscribed to the $50,000 fund to aid the employers, and to urge individual union members to do likewise; also to secure the indictment of the officials of the employers' association on a charge of conspiracy against certain team owners.

Commencing tomorrow morning, the business men will increase their efforts to bring the strikers to terms. Arrangements have been made by every business house involved in the trouble to double their force of non-union men.

Must Shoot If Necessary.

Tonight it was said that all preparations had been made to start out 1,000 wagons tomorrow morning, manned by non-union men. Each of these wagons will be guarded by deputy sheriffs or policemen, and each one of these men has received explicit instructions from superior officers to prevent disturbances of any kind. The instructions of each of the deputy sheriffs and each of the policemen is to use every peaceable means in their power to quiet the rioters, but if this means proves unsuccessful, to use their revolvers, and to shoot to kill. The strikers and their friends during the last days have shown little inclination to clash with the deputy sheriffs or the policemen.

Today the express companies made deliveries in all parts of the city. Each of the wagons carried two armed guards, and in not a single instance, it was asserted tonight, had any of the wagons met with opposition. During the meeting of the Federation of Labor today several wagons passed the meeting hall unmolested.

No Trouble as Expected.

During the day several firms involved in the strike replenished their coal supply, which in many cases had dwindled down to nearly nothing. All these coal wagons were driven by non-union teamsters, but no opposition was met with on the part of the strikers and their friends. This was rather an agreeable surprise to the employers, who had anticipated trouble.

The Employers' association through their chief counsel, Levy Mayer, announced tonight that they would do everything possible to assist the committee appointed yesterday by Mayor Dunne to investigate the causes of the strike. Charges of conspiracy by both sides caused Mayor Dunne to appoint the investigating committee. President Shea of the Teamsters' union tonight said that the unions would be found ready to assist the mayor's committee in every manner possible to bring to light all the facts concerning the difficulty.

Mr. Mayer and Clarence S. Darrow, chief legal adviser of Mayor Dunne, had a long conference tonight, the nature of which was guarded carefully, but which was believed to pertain to plans for a settlement of the strike. Mr. Darrow afterward said he was anxious to see peace.

PENNSYLVANIA SOLDIER MEETS TRAGIC DEATH

First Lieutenant Moses R. Ross Is Killed in a Bicycle Accident.

[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

NEWPORT NEWS, VA., May 7.—First Lieut. Moses R. Ross, a native of Pennsylvania, graduate of Washington and Jefferson college, and honor graduate of the 1904 class at the artillery school at Fortress Monroe, met a tragic death on the reservation at Old Point Comfort early this morning.

The young officer was riding a bicycle along the cement walk between the outer rampart of the old fort and the inner wall. This walk skirts the moat, which is about 30 feet wide and quite deep. It is believed that the sheth of the bicycle broke and the officer fell into the moat. It is supposed that he was stunned by the fall and was unable to make any adequate effort to save himself. His dead body was found in the water, and the bicycle with the broken chain was found on the walk.

Lieut. Ross entered the service as a private in Company I, Fifth Pennsylvania volunteers, and later became second and then first lieutenant in the Forty-sixth regiment, United States infantry, being mustered out in May, 1901. He received his commission in the artillery corps November 13, 1903. He was 27 years old.

STONED TO DEATH IN RELIGIOUS DISPUTE

Five Men Are Under Arrest at Pottsville, Being Charged With Murder.

[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

POTTSVILLE, May 7.—As the result of a religious dispute Michael Melicho was stoned to death last night at Dormers, near here. Simon Karpeniz, Michael Pezeka, Frank Lunar, John Birtzik and Mike Undik were arrested, charged with the murder, and are now in the county prison.

There was a dance last evening at Martzin's hotel, between St. Clair and Port Carbon. A dispute between representatives of different religious faiths broke up the dance. Michael Melicho and a companion, John Shasto, whose arguments received the most applause, were followed from the hall by a dozen or more of those who had most hotly opposed them in the controversy. Without warning Melicho and his companion were attacked in a lonely spot and a shower of stones was hurled at them. At the first volley Shasto fled. Melicho tried to defend himself, but a large stone struck him over the heart and another upon the forehead, and he finally fell dead, bleeding from many wounds.

Officers arrested five of Melicho's alleged assailants, whom Justice of the Peace Montgomery committed to jail without bail. Other arrests are likely.

WARSHIPS SEEN COALING AT SEA

Fleet Is Sighted Northwest of Borneo—Japanese Highly Incensed at France.

KAMRANH BAY RUSSIAN BASE

[Associated Press Cable to The Gazette.]

LONDON, May 8.—A dispatch to the Daily Mail, dated Labuan, British Borneo, May 6, says: "The steamer Chilengmai reports that Friday night she passed a fleet of warships and other vessels off the Mantanani Islands, northwest of Borneo. The warships apparently were coaling."

A dispatch from Labaun to Reuter's Telegraph Company reports that the fleet sighted was a large one in two divisions, showing lights, but stationary and with the appearance of being engaged in coaling.

Special dispatches from Tokyo to the London morning newspapers represent that the Japanese feeling is becoming highly inflamed at France's alleged failure to prevent ostentatious disregard for the principles of neutrality by the Russian Pacific squadron. The Tokyo Asahi bluntly describes the French assurances that they would preserve neutrality as falsehoods and declares that Japan would be justified in bombarding French territory, and calls upon the government to take vigorous action.

Among Japanese officials in London it is asserted that France put off Japan by fair promises, in order to give Rojestvensky time to effect a junction with Nebogatoff's division.

A telegram from Hongkong to a news agency gives a long dispatch, which it is alleged the French authorities at Saigon refused to transmit on April 30, detailing how for 10 days the Russian Pacific squadron was allowed to convert Kamranh bay practically into a Russian base, freely coaling and provisioning openly under the direction of Prince Lieven, captain of the Russian cruiser Diana, the French Admiral De Jacquieres being present the whole time, and until April 23, making no attempt to check the breach of neutrality and giving Rojestvensky time to effect a junction of his forces, and that the Russians are now given every privilege, provided they keep just outside the three-mile limit.

The report from Tsingtau that the Russian squadron is off Vanfong, which is an inlet containing the port of Honkohe, the Three Kings being rocks near the entrance of Vanfong bay, is held to confirm the Japanese assertion that Rojestvensky is still cruising in French waters.

The Daily Telegraph's correspondent at Tokyo says that in response to Japan's second protest France intimated that Rojestvensky had been ordered to leave Honkohe. The Times' correspondent at Tokyo reports that the Japanese chambers of commerce are concerting measures to cease all commercial transactions with French citizens.

RUSSIANS FIGHT CHINESE.

Have Hot Brush With the Bandits. Oyama Is Pushing Back Czar's Army.

GADGETADANA, MANCHURIA, May 7.—There was a sharp brush with Chinese bandits on the extreme Russian right today.

Since April 29 the Japanese have been advancing slowly and intermittently, pushing forward their columns successively from right to left under cover of a screen of cavalry and Chinese bandits.

It is reported that the Japanese armies in the center have been reinforced. The force at Field Marshal Oyama's disposal, according to information recently received, is 340 battalions, or 200,000 men.

TOKYO BELIEVES FLEETS WILL UNITE TOMORROW

TOKYO, May 7.—Assuming that Vice Admiral Rojestvensky meditates a speedy junction of his squadron with Vice Admiral Nebogatoff's division, it is believed here the meeting of the ships may be expected by tomorrow, the speed of Nebogatoff's division being only about seven knots an hour. These ships are believed to be in need of coal and stores, and their deficiencies in this respect probably will be supplied by Vice Admiral Hojestvensky at some friendly port after the two admirals effect a junction.

TEHERAN, May 7.—The shah of Persia started today on his visit to Europe.

NO RELIEF ON FREIGHT RATES

Measure of Force Will Not Result from the Senate Hearing.

NEW LAW IS NEEDED

Congressman Townsend Declares the Public Will Not Accept Railroad Testimony.

THE PROGRAM CARRIED OUT

The Pittsburgh Gazette Bureau, Room 16, Postal Building, WASHINGTON, D. C., May 7.

No railroad rate bill with force in it will come out of the senate committee on interstate commerce. There have been sufficient developments in the series of hearings now on to show that there is no intention in this committee to frame a bill giving to a federal commission any kind of rate-fixing power.

Representative Townsend of Michigan, one of the authors of the Esch-Townsend bill, which has been the object of attack by nearly every witness summoned by the committee, has been watching these hearings with no little interest. He returned home yesterday, thoroughly convinced that there was no chance of a rate bill in the senate committee along the lines recommended by President Roosevelt in his last annual message.

Col. Hepburn, chairman of the house committee on interstate and foreign commerce, holds the same view. Their opinion is that the fight, so far as regulation of rates by a government commission is concerned, will have to be started all over again. In case the president is still persistent the semblance of a rate bill will be reported, but this will only apply to such abuses as discriminations of private cars and private terminals.

New Law Is Necessary.

"These constitute only a part of the evils of the present transportation system in this country," said Mr. Townsend. "A bill authorizing a government commission to fix rates on interstate commerce when complaint is made by either party is absolutely necessary to correct the transportation evil. I am frank to admit that I see little hope in the senate committee, judging from the present situation. But the contest will still go on, and the public will get be willing to take the word of the railroad officials now appearing before the senate committee that there is no abuse and that no more law is needed.

"It is quite true that the average freight rates in this country are not high. No one has ever contended that the average was high, and certainly this is not the complaint. The real reason for more law to regulate rates lies in the fact that shippers are not on an equality. While one class of goods or one class of shippers gets a very low rate, another class has to make this up by paying a very high rate. And there is no redress, especially where those shippers have no other means of transportation and are at the mercy of the railroads. I think it is equallization that the president himself is aiming at, rather than the general lowering of freight rates."

Attempt to Change Sentiment.

The present hearings are going on according to the program arranged by Senators Elkins and Kean, the two leading spirits in the committee, who are against government rate fixing. It was the intention to bring on an avalanche of railroad testimony against this idea, and that is just what has been done. The purpose was to attempt to change public sentiment. The railroads still have a press bureau here, which puts forth at great length all views expressed before the committee against the president's contention.

A few shippers from the northwest have been sandwiched in to supplement the testimony of the railroad presidents and their lawyers. But there will be a break in this kind of testimony the coming week, for Gov. Cummins of Iowa has arrived in Washington and will be heard. He comes from a state where there has been an emphatic demand for railroad legislation and where there is political backing for the views he entertains. He speaks from a neutral standpoint.

PITTSBURGH GIRL DIES IN A CHICAGO HOSPITAL

Miss Bessie Myers, a Musical Student, Undergoes an Unsuccessful Operation for Appendicitis.

[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

CHICAGO, May 7.—Miss Bessie Laurel Myers, late of Pittsburgh, died today at the Hospital of St. Vincent of Paduca, after an operation for appendicitis, performed by Dr. Leonard St. John. Dr. St. John said tonight that the disease had progressed so far that the operation was not sufficient to save her life.

Miss Myers has been living at the Young Woman's Christian Association home in Michigan boulevard for several months. Last Monday she became ill and she said she thought she had ptomaine poisoning contracted from something she had eaten there. The report of her suspicions got out in a very exaggerated form and this led to a panic among the girls who live there, but the surgeons said she had appendicitis as soon as they examined her.

She was a very talented young woman and had just won a scholarship in the Chicago Musical college. Her mother is Mrs. Emma Myers, formerly of Pittsburgh. She has lived here for some time.

FAREWELL TO MOUNTAINEERS

President Roosevelt Takes Leave of His Hunting Companions.

GIVES THEM DINNER

Party Attends Church at Glenwood Springs and Attracts an Immense Throng.

SOUVENIRS OF THE CHASE

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

GLENWOOD SPRINGS, COL., May 7.—President Roosevelt tonight entertained at dinner his companions on his three weeks' hunt in the Rocky mountains. After the dinner the president bade them farewell and promised that all would live forever in his fondest memory. At the dinner were P. B. Stewart of Colorado Springs, Dr. Alexander Lambert of New York, Guides Jacob Boren, John Goff, "Brick" Wells, John Fry and G. M. Sprague, Courier Elmer Chapman and Secretary Loeb. In describing the function, Chapman said:

"We sat just as we die in camp. Mr. Loeb was the only dude at the party. You reporter fellows ought to have been there. You could have got all kinds of pieces for your papers."

Other members of the hunt said the party talked over the events of the three weeks and had a good time generally. The president was at his best. He was entirely rested and had just come in from a two or three hours' drive through the woods where the president went to study Colorado birds. Mr. Stewart is a naturalist, who knows every bird in the mountains and can tell its habits and imitate its calls.

Put Away Their Revolvers.

The dinner was served in a private dining room of the Hotel Colorado. The guests were dressed much as they were in the mountains. Flannel shirts were the rule, although the guides did discard their chaparejos and laid away their revolvers. The president and Mr. Loeb wore frock suits and Dr. Lambert and Mr. Stewart were in plain business suits. Some of the stories told at the dinner later went into circulation, but it was understood they were not to be printed. They related entirely to incidents connected with the hunt.

The president spent a quiet Sunday. Three weeks ago the railroads planned to run excursions into Glenwood Springs today, but the plan was discouraged by Secretary Loeb, who announced that no program would be permitted which called for an address by the president. In spite of that fact, large numbers of persons arrived in every train and, rather than disappoint them, Mr. Roosevelt stepped out on the second story balcony of the hotel, after luncheon, and spoke briefly. He said:

"I did not anticipate having the pleasure of meeting you today, and, as it is Sunday, I am not going to try to make a speech to you. I shall merely say how greatly I am enjoying my visit to this beautiful state. I was shut in the last week up in the mountains where had been a little more weather like this. If there had been, I think we should have gone about two bears better. But still, as we got to, I do not think we have any right to complain.

Colorado Has Been Kind.

"I am sure I need not tell you how much I have enjoyed my holiday here and how deeply I have appreciated the kindness with which I have been treated by the people of your state, the people in your cities and the ranchmen right in the immediate neighborhood of where I was hunting. It is a great pleasure to see the men of Colorado, and no even greater pleasure to see the women, and I do not know but what I am even more glad to see the small folks. I shall not try to make you a speech. I shall simply say again how glad I am to see you and be your guest."

The president's party was up early today. After breakfast a limited amount of mail was got out of the way and then the party went to the Presbyterian church. An invitation to the president and his party was extended yesterday by the Rev. J. Wilson Curren, and it was accepted. Just as the party was about to leave the hotel, photographers requested a sitting that would include every member of the party. Chairs were grouped on the lawn in front of the veranda. As soon as it was over the president led off at a brisk walk which brought the party to the little church 10 minutes later, all out of breath except Mr. Roosevelt. He seemed to enjoy the walk. Along the street he was cheered, and he responded by lifting his hat frequently, patting children on the head and bowing to parents.

Hundreds Stood Outside Church.

In front of the church the Sunday school children stood in open formation and as the party passed through the little folks sang. The church was crowded and hundreds of persons stood outside near the open windows.

The Rev. Mr. Curren preached on the responsibility of the Christian church. He made no reference to the distinguished visitor except in his prayer, when he asked that the president be given the strength to carry on the duties of his office. The congregation remained standing until the presidential party left the church.

Mr. Roosevelt set a rapid pace toward the hotel. Half way to the hotel he expressed a desire to see the skins of the bears he had shot, and he turned back to the store of Frank Hayes, a taxidermist, who has been intrusted with their mounting. As the skins were laid out, the president pointed to that of the first bear he had killed. He said that was his favorite, as it was the only one that had required more than ordinary sportsmanship to kill. The pelt is the largest of the lot. The bear was killed with two shots, both of which had to be fired with careful aim in order not to injure the dogs, which held the animal at bay.

As the skins were laid on the floor, Mr. Roosevelt showed how each animal was hit. The taxidermist remarked that every shot had been clean and not a skin had been injured. After examining the skins, and instructing that they be mounted with closed mouths, instead of open-jawed, the president examined the skulls which are to be sent to Washington to be added to the collection of C. Hart Merriam, biologist of the department of agriculture. The taxidermist exhibited a cast showing the footprints of the first bear killed by President Roosevelt.

"I should like a duplicate of that," said the president.

"The original is yours if you will accept it," replied Mr. Hayes.

"That would make a good receiver for the cards of your Democratic senators," said Mr. Stewart.

This evening the president went to the private car "Rocket," in which he will travel to Washington. The presidential special train will leave Glenwood Springs at 8 o'clock tomorrow morning. A daylight run will be made to Denver in order to give the party an opportunity to enjoy the scenery. The train will stay 10 minutes at Hanging Bridge, one of the prettiest views on the Denver & Rio Grande railway.

A souvenir of the hunt which Mr. Roosevelt will take to Washington is the dog "Skip." This animal is a small black and tan terrier, and was the most active animal on the chase. He has a habit of getting on the backs of the horses and slipping from one to another. When the other dogs are tired "Skip" is still running about investigating everything that excites his curiosity.

Other souvenirs the president is taking are pictures snapped on the hunt by Mr. Stewart. They show the camps, the trails, the party in action, the dogs and the game after it had fallen. It is a prize collection which will never be published unless in some literary work the president may at some time conclude to put out.

Considers Outlook Encouraging.

"Notwithstanding the present publicity and wide discussion of the society's affairs, I regard the situation as full of encouragement for all who are truly interested in the society and its prosperity. The financial strength and ability of the society are not questioned. There is no abatement of effort on the part of its efficient staff and loyal agency force to perform their full duty to the society, in maintaining and extending its growth and prestige. The work we have inaugurated will be carried to a successful completion. In this determination there is but one thought, either on the part of the independent members of the board or directors, the society's officers or of the agents. I shall devote myself and all my strength to its accomplishment.

"Do not be deceived by rumored suggestions of my resignation as president of the society. They proceed from interested sources and are intended to discredit and defeat the principle of mutualization. Although no one appreciates better than I the sensitive character of a life insurance company's credit and the great importance of its hold upon public confidence, I firmly believe that the fact that the society proposes to take care of itself and to work out its own reforms will afford the best possible guaranty of its inherent strength and the security of its future."

Untermyer Assails Letter.

When shown a copy of the above correspondence tonight at his home, Graystone, Yonkers, Samuel Untermyer said:

"This letter, like its numerous predecessors, has been mailed in the newspapers, instead of at the postoffice. Coming at this acute stage of the controversy, and under the circumstances in which this gentleman finds himself placed, its insincerity is too obvious for comment.

"Nobody is likely to be deceived by the palpable attempt to anticipate the serious charges in which the removal of Mr. Alexander is about to be asked for betraying his trust, nor are the policyholders likely to be misled by such a transparent bid for their support.

"The 'true inwardness' of this sham movement for mutualization is better understood than these gentlemen seem to appreciate," Mr. Untermyer said in conclusion.

FRICK COMMITTEE WILL SEND PROTESTING LETTER

Proposes to Ask Schiff Conference Today to Take No Action Pending Investigation.

[By Private Wire to The Gazette.]

NEW YORK, May 7.—Grave doubts are entertained as to whether Jacob H. Schiff will accomplish the ends for which he caused to be called an "informal conference" of directors of the Equitable Life Assurance society at 3 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, the moment the conferees have assembled there will be a protest from the members of the Frick investigating committee, in a letter of objection to any action being taken.

The directors assembled will be urgently requested by Mr. Frick and his associates to take no steps at this time, or while the investigating committee's work is uncompleted. On the other hand the directors will be assured that the investigating committee's labors will have been finished and a report submitted for their consideration, probably within a month.

This protest is bound to have many sympathizers, and it was considered very unlikely today that resolutions of a very radical nature, such as Mr. Schiff and his supporters have prepared, will be submitted, or if offered, will be adopted.

The only purpose of the Schiff conference is the adoption of resolutions asking for the removal of James W. Alexander as president and Gage E. Tarbell as vice president, these to be submitted to the board of directors at a special meeting to be called at the request of five directors.

TORTURE WOMAN TO GET MONEY

Robbers Burn and Maltreat Victim to Compel Her to Reveal Location of Savings.

TWO ARRESTS ON SUSPICION

Criminal annals of Allegheny can scarcely reveal a robbery surrounded by more dastardly cruelty than that which was perpetrated at the home of Mrs. Frederick Reitler in Coulter, near McKeesport, Saturday morning, in which Mrs. Reitler was taken from a sick bed by a band of thieves and burned and maltreated until she was compelled to reveal the hiding place of her savings for years, amounting to $850.

Mr. Reitler, who is employed in the Scott Haven mines, left for his work Friday evening, leaving his wife, three sons and a daughter, Minnie. About 2 o'clock Saturday morning Mrs. Reitler, who slept downstairs, was awakened. A hand was placed over her mouth and two masked men quickly bound and gagged her and passed her through an open window to a confederate on the outside. Making a fruitless search of the house, the two men joined their companion and victim in the yard, and binding Mrs. Reitler to a tree ordered her to tell where her money was hidden under threats of shooting her. Mrs. Reitler, who has just recovered from a serious illness, begged to be allowed to return to the house for more clothing.

Tortured Her With Fire.

This was denied her, and the robbers began applying burning sticks to her feet, arms, face, and even her eyes, in an effort to compel her to tell her secret. Unable to further stand her pain, Mrs. Reitler announced that the money could be found in a mattress. As two of the men entered the house to search for the $850, Mrs. Reitler fainted. When they returned with their booty Mrs. Reitler had partially recovered, and she was told to say nothing of the visit of the desperadoes under penalty of death. Leaving her suffering and bound to the tree, the three men fled.

It was an hour before she was able to dislodge the gag from her mouth. Her moans aroused her daughter, Minnie, who came downstairs and released her mother. The rope had cut into her flesh and she was unable to walk, and she was carried into the house by her sons. Mrs. Reitler was able to give a good description of the men, all of whom wore masks.

She said the leader was about six feet tall and she believed she discerned a mustache under his mask. He wore black clothes. The two other men were shorter and heavier-set. Mrs. Reitler had drawn the money from the McKeesport bank Friday for the purpose of buying a property adjoining the one occupied by the family, and the deal was to have been closed on Saturday. Fears are entertained for Mrs. Reitler's recovery.

Searching Parties Turned Out.

Searching parties, directed by Constable Painter, began scouring the hills and woods at 5 o'clock Saturday morning. The outrage is believed to be the work of three strange men who appeared in Coulter a week ago. They said they were miners looking for work. One of the men worked a few days at Scott Haven in the same mine where Mr. Reitler is employed. It is supposed he learned of the intention of Mrs. Reitler to draw the money from the bank, followed her there, and returned and informed his pals of what he had discovered. The robbery, it is supposed, was then planned. This man has disappeared.

Two men, who give their names as Tom Gilday and Adam Stergan, were arrested on suspicion by Matthew Painter, town constable of Coulter, at 2 o'clock yesterday morning in Westmoreland county. They were turned over to County Detectives Jerry Lutz and John Englert, and were placed in the McKeesport jail. Evidence against the pair is furnished by the watchman at the Baltimore & Ohio railroad tower near Coulter, who has identified them as being the same men who appeared at the tower late Friday night, removed their shoes and left, appearing about two hours later and putting on their shoes again. The shoes worn by the men are said to fit the tracks found about the Reitler home. The men are taciturn, and it is said they are unable to give a satisfactory account of their movements at the time of the robbery.

GLADDEN DISTRIBUTES PROTEST TO CONGREGATION

Declares He Would Put Stamp of Disapproval on Lawless and Dishonorable Business.

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

COLUMBUS, O., May 7.—The Rev. Dr. Washington Gladden, pastor of the First Congregational church, today distributed among the members of his congregation copies of his recent address to the Congregational ministers at Boston, protesting against the acceptance of Mr. Rockefeller's gifts to the American board of missions and commented thereon. He said:

"I think you know your minister well enough to know he does not make rash or reckless statements about such matters. Some of you have said you could not judge in the matter, because you had no knowledge of the facts. I think I have given you facts enough to justify a judgment. But there are volumes more.

"If this protest has any significance it is in its determination to put the stamp of approval upon lawful and honorable business, and to put the stamp of disapproval on lawless and dishonorable business."

CUT THE GAMES SHORT.

County Detectives Carry Out the District Attorney's Orders and Rout the Sunday Ball Players.

The pastor of the Oak Presbyterian church at Smiths station, on the Castle Shannon railroad, had complained that baseball players disturbed the services at his church, so yesterday County Detectives R. G. Robinson, John Reed, Henry Merit, John Sonnefeld and George Murin went to Smith station and stopped a game.

A short distance away the detectives came across 3,000 people observing a game between the A. J. Martin and West Homestead clubs, the ball ground being in a natural amphitheater, the spectators sitting on the hillsides. A half dozen men were selling "soft" drinks from booths. The game was stopped and the merchants stole away.

BOY DECLARED HEIR TO VALUABLE ESTATE

GREENSBURG, May 7.—Jacob W. McCausland, Jr., an 18-year-old boy of Denver, Col., is declared an heir to Greensburg realty valued at more than $150,000 by an opinion and decree handed down by Judge John B. Steel of the orphans' court. The realty is among the most valuable in Greensburg and yearly rentals exceeding $5,000 are derived from it. The property belongs to the estate of the late Mrs. Anna McCausland of Greensburg, and the boy's claim was bitterly contested by other relatives of the legatee, the legitimacy of the boy's birth having been questioned.

UNITED STATES TREASURY REPORTED IN GOOD SHAPE

Annual Deficit Will Be Materially Reduced Before the End of June—Banks Respond Promptly.

[By Private Wire to The Gazette.]

WASHINGTON, May 7.—The United States treasury is in excellent shape. The only unfavorable feature is the presence of a large deficit for the current fiscal year. That is more of a paper than an actual disadvantage. The shortage will be materially lessened before June 30. The only disturbing feature, Treasurer Roberts says, is this deficit. It is the biggest of the year just now, aggregating $44,884,618. It will grow during the balance of this month, but it is believed it will be lighter in June.

One cheerful feature of the treasury situation is the fact that the revenues show no sign of falling below last year's record. For the 10 months of the current fiscal year they aggregate $1,000,000 more than for the corresponding period of last year, the gain being made up from internal revenue receipts and income from miscellaneous sources. The hole in the treasury was made by an unexpectedly heavy expense, and is chargeable to this fact and none other.

The national banks have been quick to respond to the call of Secretary Shaw for the return of government funds held by them. The sum of $1,975,600 has been received on the call which is due May 15, and more than $1,000,000 has been paid in from the funds which must be surrendered by June 1. The main reason advanced to account for the anxiety of the banks to return the government funds so promptly is that they will be able to get better prices now for their bonds, which will be released with the payment of the deposits, than if they wait until later, when a large amount of bonds will be thrown on the market.

One of the natural results of the calling in of government deposits has been an increase in the national bank circulation.

HILLTOP MAN DIES AFTER KILLING SNAKE

Peculiar Death of George S. Wood at His Home Near Aliquippa.

A snake's charm was fatal to George S. Wood, head salesman for the Arbuckle Company, who died a few moments after encountering the reptile in the yard of his summer home near Aliquippa on Saturday evening. Mr. Wood apparently was in the best of health and had left a Pittsburgh & Lake Erie train on which he made the trip from the city. He was startled on seeing the snake, but killed it and continued his way into the house. On reaching the threshold he was seized with a hemorrhage and expired before medical aid could be summoned.

Mr. Wood for 20 years was associated with the Arbuckle Company. His Pittsburgh residence was at 27 Arlington avenue and he was a school director in the Thirty-first ward. He was a veteran of the Civil war and belonged to G. A. R. post No. 388. He was a member of the Knox Hills Methodist Episcopal church. Surviving Mr. Wood are his widow and the following children: George F. Wood, Milwaukee; Mrs. Jennie Biers and Mrs. William Riddle, Oakmont; Mrs. William Trevis, Pittsburgh; Mrs. John McKee, Los Angeles, Cal. A stepson, Charles D. Haffey, lives at Beaver.

REV. DR. FRAZIER LOSES IN REPUBLICAN PRIMARIES

[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

YOUNGSTOWN, O., May 7.—The count of the votes in the Republican primaries was not completed until this morning and the results afforded surprises. Up to 4 o'clock Muldoon and Baldwin were running neck and neck for the mayoralty and neither was certain of the nomination until the reports from all the precincts were in.

One of the surprises was the fact that Marty Higgins defeated C. Perry Edwards, the present president of council. Edwards is one of the superintendents of the American Steel Hoop Company, which is on strike, and the union men rallied to Higgins in a body. The Rev. Dr. S. R. Frazier, pastor of the Tabernacle United Presbyterian church, and formerly of Pittsburgh, who was a candidate for the legislature, was overwhelmingly defeated by Randall H. Anderson.

The nominees and their closest competitors are mayor, Frank L. Baldwin, 3,439; Thomas C. Muldoon, 2,829; city solicitor, Frank L. Oesch, 3,650; E. E. Miller, 2,278; city board of public service (three to elect), David Heinselman, 4,263; Phillip Hagan, 4,446; George J. Vetter, 4,136; Milton Stambaugh, 3,018; president of council, Marty Higgins, 2,758; C. P. Edwards, 2,427; councilman-at-large (two to elect), Harry Parrock, 3,942; Edward Welsh, 3,175; probate judge, David F. Griffith, 3,090; W. J. Williams, 2,433; representatives (two to elect), Randall H. Anderson, 3,705; R. C. Huey, 4,809; Dr. S. R. Frazier, 2,246; clerk of courts, John H. Middleton, 3,990; Hugh Swaney, 3,746; coroner, C. M. Klyne, 4,026; Ray Whelan, 2,286. The councilmen elected are: Second ward, Lionel Evans; Fourth ward, James A. Green, and Sixth ward, R. A. Campbell.

RECORD IS BROKEN FOR ENTRANCE OF IMMIGRANTS

Over 12,000 Foreigners Pass Quarantine Within 12 Hours—Arrive on Ten Steamers.

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

NEW YORK, May 7.—All records were broken today in the number of immigrants passed quarantine. Within 12 hours 12,039 foreigners, arriving in steerage, were permitted to enter New York, indicating that the spring influx of immigrants this year will probably exceed the records for former years.

Ten transatlantic liners brought this army of immigrants to the United States. They began to arrive early in the morning, and the last to pass quarantine was the Hamburg-American liner Bluecher, which was admitted at 6 o'clock this afternoon and added 605 names to the already long list of foreigners arriving in the steerage.

The steamer Pretoria brought 2,198 steerage passengers, the greatest of any of today's arrivals. The Italia was second with 1,854, and the Weimar was third was 1,571. Other ships admitted carried immigrants as follows: Citta di Napoli, 1,442; Gerty, 1,410; Umbria, 840; New York, 586; Hudson (French), 653; Algeria, 1,081.

HOLD-UP IS CHARGED.

Man Asserts That His Friends Took His Last Dollar.

James Welsh, aged 35, Thomas Welsh, aged 32, of Brownsville avenue, and Thomas Nugent, aged 35, of Windom street, were arrested yesterday in Carson street. They are alleged to have held up and robbed Owney Moakley of 914 Cabot Way, at the foot of South Fourth street.

The four men had been visiting some of the South Side speakeasies and about noon Moakley refused to buy any more drinks. He left his three companions and at the foot of South Fourth street, it is alleged, they held him up. Nugent is said to have gone through Moakley's pockets, taking a dollar, all the money he had.

NEW CHURCH DEDICATED AND DEBT IS RAISED

BEAVER, May 7.—With three meetings, which were attended by hundreds, the new Methodist Episcopal church of Beaver was dedicated today. Bishop John W. Hamilton of San Francisco, Cal., preached this morning. At the close of the service $15,000, which was required to clear the indebtedness of the congregation, was raised. At a platform meeting this afternoon the principal speaker was Capt. John P. Drave. Short addresses were also made by clergymen from neighboring towns. The dedicatory services were conducted this evening according to the ritual of the Methodist Episcopal church by Bishop Hamilton; Dr. D. W. Smith, editor of the Pittsburgh Christian Advocate, and the Rev. Appleton Dash, pastor of the church.

Preaches Anniversary Sermon.

Yesterday was the twenty-fourth anniversary of the organization of the Park Avenue Presbyterian church. The Rev. Dr. George W. Chalfant, pastor of the church for 20 years, conducted the services both morning and evening.

Young Woman Received $115,000 Before Marriage Ceremony Took Place.

[By Private Wire to The Gazette.]

NEW YORK, May 7.—In the chapel of St. Cecilia's church, Brooklyn, after mass this afternoon, were married E. R. Whitney, a wealthy asphalt promoter of Montreal, and Miss Annie Bennett, formerly a telephone operator at the Grand Union hotel. The bridegroom is 70 years old, the bride gives her age as 22. The ceremony was witnessed by a few close relatives of both families.

From the church the wedding party drove across the river to the St. Regis hotel for breakfast. In the afternoon Mr. and Mrs. Whitney departed for Atlantic City, where they will spend their honeymoon.

When the engagement was announced Mr. Whitney gave his fiancee $100,000. Last Wednesday, when the wedding date was set, he added $15,000 for his fiancee's trousseau. Mr. and Mrs. Whitney, after the honeymoon at Atlantic City, will take a trip to Europe. On their return they will live in New York. Mr. Whitney's fortune is placed at $2,000,000.

PHILADELPHIA GERMANS HONOR POET SCHILLER

Observing Centennial Anniversay of His Birth—Celebration Being Held in Cleveland.

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

PHILADELPHIA, May 7.—The observance of the centennial anniversary of the death of Frederich von Schiller, the German poet, by all the German singing societies and nearly all other German organizations in this city began today and will continue until Thursday. Commemorative exercises took place this afternoon at the Schiller monument at Memorial hall on the site of the Centennial exposition of Fairmount park. Fully 50,000 persons were present.

The exercises were presided over by Albert Schoenhut, president of the Constatter Volksfest verein. Addresses were made by Prof. K. D. Jessen of Bryn Mawr college, and Prof. Daniel H. Shumway of the University of Pennsylvania. A chorus of 800 voices, accompanied by an orchestra of 100 pieces, sang several selections from Schiller's works. On Wednesday and Thursday Schiller's "Wallenstein" will be produced at the Academy of Music.

CLEVELAND, O., May 7.—Schiller day was observed here this afternoon, with an elaborate program in Central armory. An audience numbering over 5,000 persons was in attendance. Prof. Hugo Munsterberg of Harvard college was the orator. A chorus of 500 voices, assisted by an orchestra of 100, rendered several of Schiller's masterpieces and tableaux from Schiller's "Apotheosis" were present. The celebration will be continued until Tuesday.

Large Audience Attends Production of Schiller's Drama in Allegheny.

Members of the Allegheny turnverein began their observance of the 100th anniversary of the death of Johann Christoph Friedrich von Schiller, the German poet, at their hall in South Canal street last night. Eugene Junker's company of players gave a production of one of Schiller's best-known plays, "Love and Intrigue." The play was largely attended by Germans from this section.

A concert will be given by the turnverein in the hall tomorrow evening under the direction of Carl Ahl, director of the singing society, at which a mixed chorus, with musical accompaniment, will sing Schiller's "Ode to the Artists" and his famous "Song of the Bell." The pupils of the gymnasium and elementary classes will also have a celebration, at which an illustrated book entitled "Young America," showing Schiller's picture, his biography and selections from his works, will be given to each child.

LAID TRACKS AT NIGHT.

Pittsburgh and Western Takes Possession of an Etna Thoroughfare Without Notice.

Shortly after midnight yesterday a force of about 50 laborers took possession of Middle street, Etna, and the Pittsburgh & Western railroad tracks were moved over and related, making traffic on that thoroughfare impossible. The laborers worked all day yesterday, attracting a large crowd. Most of the councilmen ordered the men to discontinue their work, which the men refused to do. Many of the residents favored calling out the fire department and turning the hose on the workmen.

The council will meet this evening and consider what steps to take, and will also investigate the raising of Grant avenue, Butler and Bridge streets, which the railroad raised above the street grades without permission of the council.

Pastor Assumes New Charge.

The Rev. Thomas D. Edgar, who recently accepted a call to the Second United Presbyterian church, Wilkinsburg, assumed the pastorate yesterday, preaching at both services. He was formerly pastor of the First church, Cambridge, O. The church has been without a pastor since the resignation in March, 1904, of the Rev. John Burnett, who accepted a call to the First church of Monmouth, Ill.

TWO MEET DEATH UNDER THE CARS

Boy Is Ground to Pieces by Freight Train and Man on Traction Road.

SHARPSBURG LAD DROWNED

Two persons met horrible deaths last night, one on the railroad and the other under a traction car. In both cases the bodies of the victims were terribly mangled. Joseph Zielenski, aged 13, fell between two cars in Pike street, near Sixteenth, while riding on a freight train on the Allegheny Valley railroad. The boy was cut to pieces. After both legs were cut off the body was again thrown under the wheels and the trunk was cut in half. He was a son of Michael Zielenski, a laborer living at 1830 Penn avenue.

The other was that of John Krenpensky, aged 40, a Hungarian residing at Rutherglen street and Compromise alley, Hazelwood. He was struck by a car of the McKeesport division at Second and Greenfield avenues and thrown under the wheels of the front truck. He died shortly after being taken from under the car. Krenpensky leaves a widow and four children.

John Cavanaugh, aged 28, a former policeman, was found dead in bed at his home, 2012 Mulberry alley, at 4 a. m. yesterday of heart disease. He was formerly a prize fighter. He is survived by a widow and his mother.

Joseph McSteen, a steel worker employed at the tube mill in Heidelberg, was found dead in an outbuilding near his boarding house at Heidelberg last evening. William Brennen, a border at the house, said McSteen was aged 35 and his home was at Bedford avenue and Middle street, Eleventh ward.

Dr. D. F. McIntosh of 1318 Biddle street, Sharpsburg, received a telegram last night stating that his son, Herbert McIntosh, was drowned yesterday while on a fishing trip near Bangor, Me. McIntosh was aged 21 and before going to Maine to look after his father's interests in the Main Hub Manufacturing company last fall, was a medical student at the West Penn Medical college. Besides his father, he is survived by three sisters and a stepmother. The body had not been recovered when the telegram was sent.

Mrs. Emma Water, aged 23, was removed from 1780 Penn avenue at 6:30 a. m. yesterday and died shortly after being admitted to the West Penn hospital. Death resulted from oedema of the lungs. The body was taken home by the woman's brother, O. B. Manrose of Crasopolis.

Mrs. Gertrude Manns, aged 28, of Carnegie, died at the West Penn hospital yesterday from burns received last Tuesday. She was employed as janitress of the Episcopal church at Crafton and while burning rubbish in the church yard her clothing caught fire. She was the wife of Henry Manns, who is employed as an electrician by the Pittsburgh Coal Company.

John Coll, aged 2, of Haights station, was killed by a train on the West Penn railroad at Creighton station yesterday.

Myers T. Powell, aged 32, a painter of Lincoln place, Mifflin township, died at Mercy hospital yesterday from injuries received by being struck by a street car near Homestead Saturday.

ONE MAN'S EAR CUT OFF.

Two Men Engage in a Bloody Stabbing Affray on a Corry Street.

Nuncle fell to the ground and his companion slashed his face in a horrible manner. He was also stabbed about the body, and his condition is serious. He was placed under arrest.

Wentry was badly wounded, his companions carrying him away. His ear was found on the ground. Nuncle is now in the hospital.

WIFE REFUSES TO DRINK, SO MAN KILLS HIMSELF

GREENSBURG, May 7.—(Special.)—Joseph Kiriz, employed at the Dorothy plant of the H. C. Frick Coke Company, last night committed suicide by shooting himself through the right breast. He and his wife had quarreled during the afternoon and the husband attempted to right matters by buying several kegs of beer and inviting his neighbors to his home. The wife refused to drink and Kiriz threw himself into the arms of his brother Martin, and declaring his wife did not love him, pressed a revolver to his breast and fired.

CONGRESSMEN TO ARRIVE TODAY

Delegation from Down-River Points Will Meet Them in Pittsburgh.

VISIT TO LOCAL INDUSTRIES

Members of the rivers and harbors committee of congress, who will gather in Pittsburgh for the trip down the Ohio river, will begin arriving in this city this morning and for two days will have a busy time before starting for Cairo. The committee will spend more time in Pittsburgh than in any other city during the 10 days of its voyage to the mouth of the Ohio. Other cities have arranged to give the committee a hearty welcome, but none on so elaborate a scale as Pittsburgh.

The members of the congressional committee are to meet in Pittsburgh from all parts of the country, some coming from far western states. A number will arrive in the city this morning about 9 o'clock and these will take the railroad excursion that is scheduled to leave the Union station at 10 o'clock. The time between their arrival and the departure of the train will be necessarily short, but it is expected that every member of the committee who is in the city this morning will make it a point to go.

To Visit Only Three Plants.

Instead of crowding into this trip many stops at various manufacturing plants, as was done last year when the Filipino commissioners were the guests of the city, thus tiring them out, it has been arranged to visit but three plants, representing three chief lines of industry in Pittsburgh.

A special train of three coaches will take the congressional party and councilmen and others to the works of the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company at Charleroi, where the train is scheduled to arrive at 11 o'clock. An hour will be spent there, when the train will take the party back to East Pittsburgh, where the Westinghouse works will be visited. Previous to the inspection a luncheon will be served at the Westinghouse plant. The train is scheduled to leave East Pittsburgh at 3 o'clock and from 3:30 to 4:30 o'clock will be spent going through the Carnegie steel plant at Homestead. The party will return to the city at 5 o'clock and will be entertained at night with grand opera at the Nixon, 10 boxes having been engaged for the occasion. The program tomorrow is a trip by boat up the Allegheny and the Monongahela rivers during the day and a banquet at the Hotel Schenley at night.

Want About $60,000,000.

Col. John L. Vance, formerly of Gallipolis, O., but now residing at Columbus, who is president of the Ohio Valley Improvement association, states that the primary object of the trip of the committee down the Ohio is to make the members personally acquainted with the river, its importance to navigation and the benefits which a permanent boating stage will bring to the cities, towns and industries along its banks.

"While the members of the rivers and harbors committee all know about the Ohio river, know what places are located on it, how much money has been spent on it and what improvements are being made and what are necessary, yet I doubt if there is a member that has seen the river from Pittsburgh to Cairo. They will learn things they never dreamed of," said Col. Vance yesterday at the Hotel Schenley.

"We are striving for improvements to give us a nine-foot boating stage the year around. Estimates of the cost range from $47,000,000 to $60,000,000. This would comprise a series of locks and dams, 57 in number to the Big Miami, which is about half way to Cairo, and about 20 between the Big Miami and Cairo. This includes the 13 dams and locks that are already built or in process of construction from here to Cincinnati. They include also the works on the Monongahela and Allegheny rivers."

Delegations Coming to Pittsburgh.

The rivers and harbors committee made a trip once before down the Ohio river as far as Parkersburg in the early part of 1898, the party also traversing the Monongahela river from Fairmont and Morgantown to Pittsburgh. The committee was not then given a reception in Pittsburgh, stopping here only over night and proceeding down the Ohio early the next morning.

The congressional committee will be met in Pittsburgh by delegations from East Liverpool, Steubenville and Wellsville, who will accompany the party down the river to those points. A committee from Wheeling will meet the congressmen at Steubenville. Col. Vance received a telegram yesterday from Congressman B. B. Dovener of Wheeling, stating that he would arrive in Pittsburgh at noon today and would be accompanied by John Waterhouse, president of the chamber of commerce of Wheeling.

SECURES MORE TRESSES.

"Jack the Snipper" Wields Scissors in Allegheny Park, Amputating Locks of Miss Augusta Mueller.

The man who has been holding up young girls in this vicinity and robbing them of their hair reappeared in Allegheny Saturday night and after cutting off about 18 inches of tresses from the head of Augusta Mueller, aged 14, of 44 Henderson street, disappeared. The screams of the girl attracted the attention of a man living in the vicinity and the thief in his hurry to get away dropped the stolen hair and escaped.

The Mueller girl and Lizzie Anderson, aged 14, of 224 Henderson street, went to Federal street and Stockton avenue, where a Salvation Army street meeting was in progress and mingled with the crowd. About 8:30 o'clock they started for home. The girls, while passing through North park, discovered a young man was following them. When they reached Poplar and Fountain streets the man caught the Anderson girl and tried to get her hair, but she struggled and broke from his grasp.

The man then grasped the Mueller girl by the hair and cut it off. The girls reported the matter to John Glenn, acting superintendent of police, and gave him a good description of the thief. They told Glenn that the man had cut another girl's hair off earlier in the night.

PRESIDENT ELECTED BY WINDOW GLASS WORKERS

CLEVELAND, May 7.—After several previous efforts to select a president of the Amalgamated Window Glass Workers of America, to take the place of W. S. Phillips, resigned, the executive committee of the workers today announced that a canvass of the last vote had resulted in the election of A. L. Faulkner of Dunkirk, Ind. The executive committee also announced Cleveland as the place for the annual meeting in July.

EIGHT CORNELL STUDENTS NARROWLY ESCAPE DEATH

ITHACA, N. Y., May 7.—Eight Cornell students had a narrow escape from drowning in Cayuga lake today. They were sailing close reefed in a 30-mile wind when their boat capsized in the middle of the lake. For 45 minutes they clung to the overturned craft, awaiting the rescuing party, which put out in rowboats. After great difficulty the students were taken ashore, nearly exhausted.

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER, JR., ON VERGE OF BREAKDOWN

NEW YORK, May 7.—(Special.)—John D. Rockefeller, Jr., will return from Europe on Wednesday, still on the possible verge of a general breakdown, despite his five months' vacation. It is certain he is no better than when he, himself, announced that he was a sick man and was going away.

Edward Kennedy in Trouble.

Edward Kennedy, a local prize fighter, was fined $100 and costs by Magistrate George A. Moke at Central police station yesterday morning. About 2 o'clock he was alleged to have assaulted J. B. Walker on Second avenue, near Market street. Walker was cut about the head and face and had to be sent to the Homeopathic hospital, but was able to appear against Kennedy at the hearing.

Soon to Try Boats Built by Nixon.

SEBASTOPOL, May 7.—The torpedo boats which are being built at the government yard here under the general supervision of Lewis Nixon of New York are nearing completion, and their trials in the Black sea will begin in a few days.

PRINCE TRAVELS FAR TO MEET HIS MASTER

Faithful Canine Comes from Cincinnati to Greet Traveler from New York.

Few dogs are privileged to travel 300 miles to meet their masters, and Prince, a sagacious Scotch collie that made the trip from Cincinnati to meet Milton B. Payne at the Union station in Pittsburgh last night, holds a peculiar record. It was a cordial meeting between master and faithful canine. It required Mr. Payne some minutes to understand how the dog came to reach Pittsburgh, but he lost no time in putting Prince in the baggage car and took him home on the Southwestern limited.

Mr. Payne lives on Oakwood avenue, a suburban residence district of Cincinnati. He had been in the east for several weeks and wired his family that he would return home on Monday morning over the Pennsylvania lines. He left New York yesterday morning on the limited and when he reached the Union station last night he was almost speechless with astonishment when he saw Prince trotting up the platform.

"How did you get here?" asked Mr. Payne.

Of course Prince only wagged his tail, but one of the station employes turned to the wondering traveler and said:

"The dog came here to meet you. He just got in tonight."

The limited lays over only 15 minutes in Pittsburgh and Mr. Payne was at his wits' end to get the dog on the train. Just at this moment Charles M. Anderson, a neighbor of Payne's, stepped out from his place of concealment behind a baggage coach and revealed the joke. He had heard of Payne's homecoming and thought it would be a good joke to bring the dog to Pittsburgh to meet his master. Anderson reached the city earlier in the evening and was stopping over here for the night. Prince was promptly placed in his crate and handed over to the baggagemaster. This morning he will reach home, after a journey of 640 miles in 24 hours.

HEAR SERVICE BY 'PHONE.

Nearly 500 Listen to Sermons in the Second Presbyterian Church Over the Wire.

Nearly 500 people were connected by telephone with the Second Presbyterian church, Eighth street, during the morning and evening services yesterday by means of a junophone, which has just been installed in the church, and were able to hear both sermons of the pastor, the Rev. Dr. S. Edward Young, and the music of the organ and the choir.

One man sent word that the sermon was the first he had heard for 20 years, owing to chronic illness. Few in the congregation were reminded of the innovation, as the junophone was hidden behind a bank of ferns. The juniphone is to be a permanent feature of the services hereafter, and on Memorial Day, when the noted evangelist, the Rev. Dr. William J. Dawson of London will speak at the morning and evening services, the long distance telephone service is to be connected, allowing residents of other cities and communities to hear the service in their homes.

OCEAN STEAMER SUNK; PASSENGER DROWNED

VINEYARD HAVEN, MASS., May 7.—The steamer Arans, Capt. Rood, of the Jey line, was sunk in a collision with the barge Glendower, one and a half miles southeast of Pollock Rip lightship tonight. One woman passenger was lost. Sixty-five persons were landed here in lifeboats. A Reading railroad tug from Philadelphia was towing the Glendower.

Councils Will Not Meet.

Both branches of councils are called to meet today in regular semi-monthly session, but the prospects are that neither branch will have a quorum on account of the visit of the rivers and harbors committee, which the city will entertain. A special meeting of common council for Thursday night is expected to pass a number of bills, including the ordinance creating 59 additional positions in the bureau of filtration.

TEST OF THE LAW MADE THIS WEEK

Supreme Court Will Be Shown Annexation Act Is Not Special Legislation.

CAN APPLY TO MANY CITIES

In Philadelphia this week the supreme court will listen to arguments upon the question of the constitutionality of the Greater Pittsburgh act. The lawyers appearing in defense of the law allowing the annexation of Pittsburgh and Allegheny will be City Solicitor W. B. Rodgers and his first assistant, T. D. Carnahan.

Mr. Rodgers is satisfied as to the constitutionality of the act. Another eminent lawyer and jurist, who believes the law will stand the test, is Gov. S. W. Pennypacker. When he placed his signature to the bill providing for a Greater Pittsburgh, it was noticed that he had passed upon the legal question involved and was satisfied. So far in the administration of Gov. Pennypacker the supreme court has not declared unconstitutional any of the acts approved by him.

The opponents of Greater Pittsburgh, who are credited with trying to prevent municipal enlargement through fear that any hope they may have for a political future will be blasted by the annexation of the two cities, will contend that the act is special and local legislation and is forbidden by the constitution. The ground for this contention will be set forth in the claim that there are no other two cities in the state that this act can possibly apply to save Pittsburgh and Allegheny.

In Allegheny county there are two second-class cities and one third-class city. It is possible to erect, under the census of 1900, five third-class cities, and they would be contiguous. In Lackawanna county there are two cities, Scranton and Carbondale. Both are growing communities and it will not be long until these two municipalities absorb the territory lying between them. In Luzerne county are Wilkesbarre and Pittstown. They are separated by several populous boroughs that in a short time will be taken in by either one of the cities. Lying adjacent to Wilkesbarre are the big towns of Plymouth and Nanticoke. Both have a population large enough for them to change from a borough to a city government. Another case is that of Harrisburg and Steelton.

WILL DO MISSION WORK.

Students from the Western Theological Seminary Will Leave for Northwest This Week.

WASHINGTON, PA., May 7.—(Special.)—The board of home missions of the Presbyterian church has decided to start an active campaign in the northwest and will send into North Dakota and Nebraska theological students to take charge of the work. A majority of the students will go from the Western Theological seminary at Allegheny and most of them are Washington and Jefferson college graduates. All the men will leave this week from Pittsburgh and neighboring points and will engage in missionary work among the cowboys and ranchmen until the middle of next September, when the seminary reopens.

The following former W. and J. men will leave for their field of labor during the coming week: J. W. Huey, Huntingdon, to Russell, N. D.; Clarence B. Wible, Wilkinsburg, to Brockett, N. D.; Francis I. Wollett, Bowdler, Col., to Conway, N. D.; N. M. McDivitt, New Alexandria, to Hampden, N. D.; William E. Fulton, Jr., Pittsburgh, to Nebraska, and Gilbert W. Stewart, Wilmerding, to Haley, N. D.

Gas Struck in New Sand.

WASHINGTON, PA., May 7.—(Special.)—The Natural Gas Company of West Virginia yesterday drilled in a well on the farm of Mrs. Rebecca J. Auld, Richhill township, Greene county, which is considered a freak. The men expected to drill to the lower sands. At a depth of 900 feet the drill penetrated a sand which contained gas, the pressure being so strong that further drilling had to be abandoned. The find was a complete surprise, there being no similar one in Western Pennsylvania.

$1.25 French Imported Voiles, 65c a Yard.

We have an even 2,500 yards to sell at the price. The lot was left on the importer's hands on account of failure to deliver at the specified time. They came to us for about half the usual cost, which explains our ability to sell them for such a price.

This fabric is in the choicest mesh of the season, just the sort that Paris is using in her model gowns. No wonder it holds such a high place in woman's favor. What other material lends itself so readily to any and every style in vogue or gives such splendid service?

The importation on which name the above special price embraces some fifteen of the latest Paris shades for both street and evening wear—navy blue, tan, wood brown, garnet, French blue, seal brown, reseda green, oyster gray, porcelain blue, golden brown, turquoise blue, champagne, meadow green, French gray, cream and black.

Ready With Women's Summer Dresses.

We are ready in our Suit and Wrap Department with women's hot weather wear. Coat suits of wash fabrics are much in evidence. Chief among them is the tub suit with tight-fitting coat of linen. It washes easily, has a stylish tailored appearance and can be kept fresher looking than any cloth dress.

Silk plays a prominent part in the Summer fashions, being much used for both shirtwaist dresses and tailor suits.

The Summer gowns of linen, organdy, lawn and Paris muslin will delight every lover of frocks and frills.

As to the Wrap question, pongee seems to be first in favor, with linens a good second. The linen coats are in the old-fashioned loose styles—the looser they are the more style, the looser they are the more comfortable. Some of the linen coats have hand-embroidered cuffs and collars. The French makers are showing entire coats of eyelet embroidery, of which we have imported a limited quantity.

Everyone interested in Summer Fashions is invited to visit Our Suit and Wrap Department today to see and discuss the latest and prettiest things.

Much has been said in the public prints about the coreless apple originated in Colorado. It will be a rude shock to the public to learn that two alleged specimens of the new fruit, when cut in London proved to have cores and seeds. It cannot be known just yet where the fraud originated. There may be a coreless apple tree and it may prove a success. If so, some one palmed off on the Messrs. Shearn a bogus fruit. The matter will surely be investigated and the facts made public, and until that is done least said will be soonest mended.

Different Philadelphia societies are taking action in favor of the burial of the remains of John Paul Jones in that city. Perhaps the one which will be the most influential is the branch of the historic Society of the Cincinnati, which dates back to revolutionary days. When this body met for the purpose it was addressed by Richard Dale, great-grandson of the Dale who sailed with Jones. The influence of the government will probably favor Arlington, and as the active participant in the removal of the body its ideas are most likely to prevail. Arlington is the national burying ground for heroes.

The Georgia legislature provided for the burning of the cancelled state bonds and those which were signed but never issued during the carpet-bag days. A commission met for the purpose at the state treasurer's office the other day and on looking them over decided not to cremate them, but to report to the legislature the opinion that they ought to be saved to be used as evidence in case the state is ever sued. The successful action of the state of South Dakota against North Carolina in which a compromise on repudiated bonds was effected has alarmed other southern states which defaulted such obligations.

It is surprising to find in a publication ordinarily so reliable as the Outlook, a review of the Kansas oil situation containing all of the inaccuracies current more than two months ago and some beside. This article begins its history of the Kansas field with the statement that it was opened by Guffey & Galey, field agents for the Standard, when it could easily have been determined the Pittsburgh oil men are as independent of the Rockefeller concern as is I. N. Knapp, the largest individual oil producer in Kansas. It contains many less excusable inaccuracies, such as have tended throughout to discredit the cause of the Kansas oil producers. The present aspect of the situation in the Sunflower State is so different from the impression given by the writer in the Outlook that his conclusions may well cause wonder in the state of Kansas.

In the Illinois house of representatives a bill has passed authorizing the city of Chicago to regulate the price of gas delivered to consumers, to control the pressure in pipes and to sell the surplus of the city's electrical energy for heating purposes. This bill must pass the senate, where the opposition is likely to be stronger, but even if it fails of passage there it must be regarded as significant of the sentiment that is demanding some better control of corporations in possession of public utilities. This sentiment sometimes strays in the direction of public ownership and sometimes demands maximum rates. Public ownership promises little relief. But if the private corporations have as much wisdom as ability they will heed the warnings and curb their greed. The public will be content with good service at a fair profit.

One of the most brutal crimes in the history of this section has been reported from Coulter. An aged lady after being tortured into telling where her money was hidden was mercilessly thrown through her own window into the lot at the rear of the house and left there to suffer alone. There is reason to believe some of the marauders were well enough acquainted in the neighborhood to have knowledge concerning the woman's board. It ought to be possible to locate them. Assuredly every power of the law should be exerted to bring the heartless wretches to account for their crime, and it will be disappointing if they escape punishment.

A Great Traffic.

All preparations are practically complete for the entertainment of members of the rivers and harbors committee, and for showing them what an important traffic awaits the improvement of the Ohio. The traffic that is now handled on that stream is small compared with that which will grow when permanent navigation is assured, though it is not now inconsiderable. It is managed at much inconvenience, attended with serious losses and at much greater cost than ought to be necessary.

Pittsburgh, as all the world is learning, is the largest tonnage producer in the world. The region down the Ohio, from this city to Cincinnati, is one of industrial activity and rapidly growing importance. It is a tonnage producer on the same comparative scale, increasing as the territory is developing. Existing lines of transportation are now inadequate in busy seasons and will soon be wholly incapable of caring for the business offering. At that juncture growth will be stopped.

With the Panama canal in course of construction and new trade fields opening, growth of industry should not be arrested but promoted. Improvement of the Ohio is essential to that object. When members of the rivers and harbors committee have been shown about Pittsburgh and conducted down the river they cannot fail to appreciate these truths. At every point they will be met by citizens who can give them the facts in the case. It is a pity other members of congress cannot also be thus made acquainted with the needs of the Ohio valley and with the advantages accruing to the remainder of the country from giving this outlet to this region.

The case that will be presented by the committee in charge of this excursion will be perfect. It cannot be otherwise. The conditions are apparent and will speak for themselves. Congress is already practically committed to the policy of a nine-foot channel from Pittsburgh to the Mississippi river, but that is not enough. Congress must understand the Ohio valley cannot afford to wait until next century for this improvement and the remainder of the country will be loser if it is compelled to wait. Time is a factor in the equation.

Roosevelt's Return.

President Roosevelt will leave Colorado this morning on his way to Washington, to resume the cares of state with renewed vigor. That he has been benefited by the outing can hardly be doubted, though he has probably been in too close touch with public affairs to get all of the good that might be extracted from such a holiday.

On his return to the capital he will be confronted by many important questions. One of the first will be to straighten out the Venezuelan tangle involving Assistant Secretary of State Loomis and Minister Bowen. It is characteristic of his fairness and courage that he desires these gentlemen to confront each other and say what they have to say openly. It is possible he may be called upon to consider the Chicago strike before he reaches Washington, or after he gets there. Beyond these is the Santo Domingo affair, the railroad rate question and other matters of policy that need the treatment of a strong and steady hand. Mr. Roosevelt will be the better prepared for them after his contest with the mountain bears.

A Drastic Suggestion.

Before the senate committee the other day E. P. Vining of Boston, argued for application of a system of inspection to the railroads, after the manner of the inspection of national banks. He opposed delegation to a commission by congress of the rate-making power, and brought a vigorous indictment against the methods of the interstate commerce commission under the legal powers they now possess. Mr. Vining's argument excites interest because it introduces a new element into a discussion grown rather monotonous and because the gentleman is an expert in some phases of railroad business.

There is something to be said for inspection of railroad business under national authority, and he has said pretty nearly all of it. There is also some things to be said on the other side. National banking and railroading are essentially different in their nature and functions. The business of a bank is to offer a place of safe deposit for the money of the people, to issue circulating medium and to facilitate the transfer and employment of funds. An examiner is able to arrive at the condition of a bank by investigation of its accounts and resources, the object being to secure the safety of depositors, principally.

A railroad on the other hand is organized for the transfer of commodities. The public interest in its operations has no direct relation to its solvency, that being the interest of stock and bondholders. The public interest is in its efficiency as an agent in the exchange of commodities and the transport of passengers. An inspection of railroad accounts would be of comparatively small value to a passenger or shipper. An inspection of physical condition and of rate sheets to be of value would have to be made by men thoroughly informed in the details of railroad business. When made the results might be open to the same criticism that is leveled against the interstate commerce commission and would be of little effect unless accompanied by some such authority as that vested in the comptroller of the currency. The comptroller may put a bank in the hands of a receiver, or may order instant correction of faulty management or impairment of resources. Would the railroads favor the creation of an office that would put in the hands of one man not only the power to order the instant correction of a faulty rate, but also to take over the management of the property in the interest of stockholders and public?

Get the Pure Air.

Thousands of persons enjoyed an almost perfect day in the Pittsburgh parks yesterday and thousands more should have been out, breathing the crisp, invigorating air in the open spaces. Possibly other thousands might have been there if the parks were better supplied with the conveniences and attractions they should possess as the pleasure grounds of the people.

Dr. Darlington, reporting on Friday for the cerebro-spinal meningitis commission, to the New York department of health, declared the best treatment of that dreaded disease is plenty of fresh air. The principal cause of the malady, he declared, is lack of fresh air, as it is most prevalent at the close of severe winters, during which many people keep themselves shut up indoors. This report was made after painstaking investigation by a commission of leading physicians and scientists of the metropolis. The connection between vitiated air and tuberculosis was long ago established as thoroughly as the relation of typhoid fever and other enteric disorders to impure water.

Undoubtedly some other of the ills to which human flesh is heir have their origin in impure air, impure water, impure food. When the doctors warn the people to "get back to nature," that is what they mean. It is not always possible, under modern conditions to do so completely, yet there are few persons who cannot, oftener than they do, get into the open air and sunshine. Approximately pure water will soon be available in Pittsburgh and nearly pure air can be had always. The food problem is a more difficult one to solve, even with the aid of state agents in excluding gross impurities, but that is no reason why the other prophylactics of nature should be neglected.

Factors of Safety.

The defalcation of President Bigelow from the First National bank of Milwaukee was sufficiently large to bring to the front again the stock criticism against bank inspectors, which are made by those who assume that dishonesty can be entirely prevented by law. Mr. Bryan in his Commoner says that people handling other people's money should not be allowed to speculate, other critics seem to think that every defalcation is the result of laxity on the part of officials, while the directors come in for their share of adverse comment. All assume that some safeguard must be lacking, and they are right in this. Thefts have looted banks since they were organized and attempts have repeatedly been made to make the laws more stringent, but people who invest their money have learned that ultimately they must depend on the individual honesty of the custodian and those who are set to watch him.

Trust is the very basis on which a bank does business, and it is this increase of confidence in our fellow-men that has made the daily deposit so free from anxiety as to what will become of the money. In the last resort the safety of the funds depends on the character of the custodians. If they are careless or dishonest they can be lost in spite of greatest legal precautions. There is a limit to which law can go and beyond that the officials controlling a bank must depend on the stability of character of those chosen to administer its affairs. In the case of Mr. Bigelow, he enjoyed the confidence of those in his profession, who honored him by election to the presidency of the bankers' association. The discovery that confidence in him was misplaced is no indictment of the laws, and it can only incite greater watchfulness in the supervision of bank officials. Bigelow had long shown careless habits that ought to have warned of his unfitness for such a place of trust.

In Kansas the supreme court has sustained the right of corporations to pipe gas where they will after securing rights of way from owners of property, but not all Kansans are convinced thereby.

TALKED OF IN GOTHAM

By FRANK A. PARKER.

[By Private Wire to The Gazette.]

NEW YORK, May 7.—The Nan Patterson case continues to hold first place in the conversation in every class of society in New York. Never before has a case been so universally discussed, and never before was so much sympathy displayed on all sides for an erring woman. Perhaps even as universal is the criticism of the district attorney's office for spending such a large amount of the people's money in an effort to convict. This is best illustrated by the conversation one hears in street cars, in cafes, in hotel corridors and everywhere else that men congregate with nothing better to do than to talk. Never has there been gathered together a party of half a dozen that favored her conviction, and in almost every case there would be some one to say "I'd vote for acquittal, even if she confessed to the shooting." No one has yet been able to discover why Mr. Rand, the assistant district attorney, has expended so much energy in this case while a half-dozen others have been allowed to drop out of sight, cases where there was more damaging evidence to aid him, and less public sentiment to overcome, than in this. He may have his reasons, but there are many ascribed to him by the public that would scarcely please him were they published in large type. In none of them, however, has his honor been impugned, but rather there is a suggestion that he has allowed his detective or bloodhound instincts to run away with him and to override his better judgment.

Great Battle of the Law.

One gentleman of some legal learning is responsible for the opinion that Mr. Rand could not resist the delights of a legal battle, such as this case presented to him. His square-cut jaw and determined thin lips are enough to convince one that Mr. Rand dearly loves a fight, and in this case he has had the greatest battle of his life. Although he lost the main issue, he had the pleasure of winning many points in the game, after the most biting encounters, and perhaps his legal acumen has been greatly sharpened as a result. To him, it would seem, the young woman whose life was at stake was only a pawn in the game with which he had little thought. He is not the bloodthirsty sleuth some people seem to believe, but he has just enough of the bloodhound in him never to give up the chase once he has struck the trail.

Unfair Methods Used in the Case.

It remained for Judge Foster of the court of general sessions to accuse the district attorney's office of using unfair means in this case. When the court quashed the indictments against J. Morgan Smith and his wife, charged with conspiracy, he used some very scathing terms in declaring that no evidence of conspiracy had been shown to the grand jury. "These defendants were needed in a very important case, and the grand jury broke the law and lowered their judicial position in feeling that the end justified the means," was one of the things said by the judge. He might also have added that when the district attorney's office was willing to evade the law, others outside of official positions are inclined to have less respect, if not for the law, at least for those who represent the law.

Some Other Recent Cases.

Strangely enough, there have been several cases during the time that Nan Patterson has been in the Tombs which have attracted but a moment's passing notice. In the case of Frank Felton, charged with the killing of Guy Roache in Broadway one evening last fall, he was a few days ago allowed to leave prison on his own recognizance. The only excuse we have so far heard is that it would be very difficult and expensive to get the evidence necessary to convict. And this, notwithstanding the fact that fully a score of people saw the shot fired, and at least three men followed Felton from the place where the shooting occurred to a saloon a few blocks away, and there pointed him out to the police as the man who did the killing. To be sure, Roache, just before his death, declared Felton did not shoot him, but that is a way gamblers have, and Felton's only punishment was a few months in prison without trial.

Both Known as "Bad Men."

Both "Big Frank" Felton and Guy Roache were known as "bad men," and the police seemed to figure that there was no loss to the city as a result of the killing. It is a case of the ethics of the west in the old days being transported to Broadway, with the exception of the fact that Roache was unarmed when shot, and his slayer knew it. He was given no "chance for his life," as was done in the west when two men had a feud to settle by the death code. Felton was the proprietor of a gambling house in Thirty-sixth street, and his chief punishment is in the closing up of his profitable business. He is a surly fellow, much given to looking for trouble when in drink, and those who know him would not be surprised were he to find it in large doses at any moment.

Another Case Lost Sight of.

It would also seem that the police have made very little effort to capture the man or men implicated in the killing of Ray Joyce in a Thirty-first street rathskeller three weeks ago. Although the arrest of a man known as "Kid" Regan has been ordered, he walks about his familiar haunts unmolested. In this case the place was well filled with people when the crime was committed, and yet the police have apparently been unable to find anyone who knows anything about the murder. One woman was discovered, it is true, who said she could identify the murderer, but she has never been confronted with anyone suspected of the crime. Perhaps Regan has "a pull," at least it looks that way, since even the orders of the commissioner of police cannot cause his arrest, although there are scores of people who have seen him daily since the crime was committed.

QUIET OBSERVATIONS

By ERASMUS WILSON.

The weather is ever a timely subject for conversation. And it is a handy one for you can talk freely about it without giving offense or doing any positive harm.

Haven't you wondered sometimes why it is that no one has ever been able to foretell the exact state of the weather with any certainty? There are, and always have been, weather prophets, but none infallible.

If you will stop and think for a minute you may know why they cannot foretell weather conditions with any certainty.

Just think of the distance that storms travel, of the varied conditions of the ground they pass over, of the many cross-currents they meet, and of the attracting and repelling forces they encounter.

The only wonder is that the weather man hits it as well as he does.

And then there are few localities that present as many difficulties as are found in the Pittsburgh district.

Sergeant Stewart called attention to this feature when he was in charge of the Pittsburgh bureau, and pointed out that a storm coming up the Ohio valley might be shunted off at Steubenville and make a bee-line for Connellsville, and pass off through the Castleman river cut into the mountains. Or it might take a "shoot" up the Beaver and head for the gap in the mountains beyond Derry. Or, as is often the case, it might switch off at Sewickley and pass along back of Observatory hill over to Etna, and thence to Irwin.

* * *

Many of you may not know, or at least do not realize, the fact that the greater part of Pittsburgh lies in a canyon nearly 250 feet in depth. But it is a fact that the level of the country beyond the rivers is the same as the tops of the hills, so that the city is as much lower than the level of the country as it is lower than the hills surrounding it.

Prof. Jilson, who is well remembered on account of his study of the geology and geography of this section, caused a good deal of surprise, and no end of talk, by exhibiting a topographical map of the city and surrounding hills. Many of our better educated people thought his map was an exaggeration of the facts, but he was able to show by the surveys made by his high school class, that the map was correct.

Being thus situated, and with the Allegheny and Monongahela gulches leading to the mountains in different directions, and each acting as a tube to give direction to the wind, it is easy to see why it is so difficult to foretell what a storm will do when it comes this way.

In level sections, as in the west, it is easy enough to determine the condition of the weather for several days ahead, and give notice of local storms at least several hours in advance. But with the number of funnels and gulches that exist between here and Wheeling, it becomes a very different and a much more difficult task.

* * *

So don't jump on to the weather man, at least not with both feet. You can't do nearly as well as he is doing.

And there is another thing that you may not have thought of, and that is the fact that this section is a sort of battle-ground for northern and southern storms. A nor'wester swoops down from the lakes and freezes us for a few days, and then comes a sou'wester and thaws us out, thus keeping us between a freeze and a thaw, while northern sections are having a steady cold spell, and southern sections are enjoying moderate weather.

While we are knee deep in mud or slush, Franklin, or even Mercer, is wrapped in snow. And when a storm sweeps across either the northern or southern sections we get the swash.

No doubt our mixed and exceedingly variable weather is the cause of the famous Pittsburgh grip, and mainly responsible for the prevalence of typhoid fever.

* * *

To the average observer of things it seems that there ought to be some means by which meteorological conditions can be predetermined. There are those who profess to be able to foretell these conditions in a general way, but not locally, at least not in such a peculiarly figured section as ours.

These "weather" scientists, so called, argue that the planets control the magnetic conditions of the earth, and that these in turn determine the meteorological phenomena. The Rev. Irl Hicks of St. Louis has achieved considerable fame through his work in this line. While he often hits the general conditions, his predictions do not fit every section of the country.

Following was his forecast for the first week in May, as given in his almanac:

"The First Storm Period—Regular.—This period is central, coincident with the center of the Venus period, on the 6th.

"Probable Results—Threatening barometer readings and rapidly rising temperature will be noted in western parts as early as the 4th, with great and growing humidity and increasing storm conditions generally. It is almost certain that a phenomenally warm wave for the season will appear at the same time, and a series of very severe and violent storms will pass eastwardly over the country from about Friday, the 5th, to Monday, the 8th. Vicious lightning and thunder, with downpours of rain and hail, will attend these storms. Tornadoes are very probable in many localities, ample warning of which will appear in good time, to all who will exercise proper care and watchfulness. A sudden reaction to very cool will follow in the track of these storms, bringing frost to most parts of the country in central and northern sections."

* * *

If you have not already forgotten the sort of weather we had during the past week, you will see that he hit it pretty well, in a general way at least.

For the remainder of the month he predicts a good deal of rain, lots of thunder and lightning, with destructive tornadoes in the tornado belt, which is quite a safe forecast.

"Look for ominous fall of barometer about the 17th, with corresponding increase of temperature, all followed by violent and wide-reaching storms of rain, hail and thunder."

Here is a chance to catch him. He says to look for the above about the 17th, which is all right, since storms usually start on the eastern side of the Rocky mountains and travel eastward, somewhat faster than express trains, so that it takes them a day or two to reach the Allegheny range.

But what do we care for the weather anyway, except just for the time being? No matter what it may be like we forget it in a few days.

Can you recall the conditions of the weather last Christmas? Possibly the most of you have forgotten what sort of weather we had the first of April, or even on Easter day, unless you had a new bonnet to exhibit.

And yet the weather always proves an interesting, as well as a most convenient topic for conversation.

Stamps for the Philippines.

The bureau of insular affairs of the war department is having prepared for the Philippine government plates for a series of postage stamps, equivalent in denominations to those of the United States. These stamps are to bear the vignettes of Rizal, a Filipino patriot; McKinley; Magellan, the discoverer of the Philippine Islands; Legaspi, discoverer and explorer, who followed in the footsteps of Magellan, implanting government in the various localities and establishing friendly relations with the natives; Lawton, Lincoln, Sampson, Washington, Carriedo, a Spanish philanthropist, who upon his death devised certain large estates to establish a water supply for Manila and Franklin. Those of the denomination of one peso and over are to bear the coat-of-arms of the Philippine Islands. The special delivery stamp has on one end a Filipino messenger boy, and on the other end Mount Mayon, a volcanic mountain, in the province of Albay, near the sea coast, and prominent as a landmark.—Washington Post.

THE LONGFELLOWS.

Reminiscences by Edward Everett Hale.

Edward Everett Hale is contributing a series of "Tarry at Home" chapters of travel in America to the Outlook, the first of them in the current number being devoted to Maine and the people he has met in that state. A portion of this is about Judge Stephen Longfellow and his sons, Samuel and Henry Wadsworth, the well known poet. In this he says:

"No, I did not go to Maine to see my cousins. I went there on my way to New Hampshire to see, if you please, on those mountains the geographical order of its stratification. In the year 1841 I was appointed as a junior member on the New Hampshire geological survey, under the eminent Charles Thomas Jackson, who is better known as one of the discoverers of the properties of ether. On my way to join this survey I went down to Portland and made a visit on my lifelong friend, Samuel Longfellow. He is the Longfellow to whom you owe some of the best hymns in your hymn book; for instance, he wrote the hymn for my ordination. He graduated with me at Cambridge in 1839. And we of our class used to call the celebrated Henry Wadsworth Longfellow the brother of the 'Poet Longfellow,' meaning that he was brother to our Sam.

The Homestead Well Preserved.

The house on the Main street is preserved, one is so glad to say in this age of destruction. When I was first there, Judge Longfellow was still alive. He had served the state to great purpose; perhaps he did not know then how his name was going down to the next century. My Samuel Longfellow must have been born in 1819. I saw him first on an August morning in 1835, at about 4 o'clock in the morning. I had ridden to Cambridge from Boston in what Dr. Holmes would have called a 'one-horse chaise,' to be examined for admittance at the college. Almost at the moment when we arrived, my brother and I, in front of the university, two more chaises arrived, both of them, as it proved, from the 'State of Maine,' so simple were the arrangements of those days. In one of them was Francis Brown Hayes, my friend from that hour till he died. In the other was Samuel Longfellow, of whom I may say the same. He was my groomsman when I was married; he wrote the hymn for my ordination. North and south, east and west, we always corresponded with each other. He was one of those, as I have said, who sat where John Harvard now sits counting the shooting stars. And to him you owe some of the best hymns of your happier Sundays. It was he and I who took that voyage of which I have spoken when we counted the islands in Casco bay. It is queer that I should say this of myself, but it was almost the first time I had ever been in a boat, though I was 19 years old. From that time till his death he went on, loyal and brave, without spot or blemish or any such thing, loving and loved. He had seen the vision and he walked with God. He came perfectly naturally into our calling of the ministry. Wherever he was he made a circle of youngsters who loved him and perhaps worshiped him, and lifted them into the higher life.

The Poet's Inspiration to Harvard.

"I think Henry Longfellow was there at the same time. I have tried to express in public once and again the blessing which he brought to Harvard college. I mark its history with a line for the day when he came there, only 20 years old. Since that day teacher and pupil, professor and undergraduate, have been of one heart and one soul. Up till that time the etiquette required that a professor should not recognize the existence of a pupil in the college yard. Since that time it has been we who are going to do this, we who have done that, freshman and dean are all one in the honorable company of letters." For here was this young fellow, Henry Longfellow, who was not only to teach us but to quicken us and inspire us and make us glad that we were admitted into the secrets of learning and literature. He would walk with us when we took our constitutional, he would play a game of whist with us if we met together at Mrs. Elliot's. He changed the routine of his part of the college from the routine of the class-room to the courtesies and cordialities of a parlor. And it would take a volume to record what Longfellow was in the amenities and charities of home life. Till he died that old Washington house of his was one might say, the trysting place of every tramp from France, or Spain, or Bohemia, or Mesopotamia, or the parts of Libya around Cyrene, who could not speak the English language, and who wanted bread for his mouth and clothes for his back. And not one of these beggars was ever turned away. They tell me that there are more English men and English women who read and know Longfellow's verses than there are who read and know Tennyson's in the same island. I do not know if this is so. But I can see that it might be so. It is a great thing to be the poet of the people. Do you remember how Dr. Holmes reminded us that Isaac Watts is quoted 20 times every day for once when a line of Pope or Dryden is repeated?"

A National Policy Frustrated.

When the senate committee on foreign relations at the last session amended the Newfoundland treaty so as to put the legislature in a belligerent and retaliatory mood, a blunder was committed of which it is impossible to speak with patience. For a local fishing trade, small and easily turned to other channels, a great national policy was frustrated.—Philadelphia Press.

Bigelow's Crimes.

Bigelow's crime was not the result of misfortune, financial pressure, passion or lack of brains. It was a piece of cold calculation, involving the corruption of employes, the juggling of the bank's books, and the deliberate thieving of money belonging to others. It was infinitely more rascally than Mrs. Chadwick's operations, which succeeded only through the cupidity of crooked bank officials.—Washington Post.

Chestnut Orchards Profitable.

Specimens of Old Coins.

Mr. Keefer on Saturday showed the writer a silver 25-cent piece that was coined in 1806 and two 1-cent pieces, one of 1796 and the other of 1806. The silver piece is especially well preserved. It is almost as large as the 50-cent piece of recent coinage, but thinner than the recently coined silver quarters. The quarter was stolen from Mr. Keefer several years ago, and he traced it to a store where the thief had made a purchase with it, and upon his identification the merchant returned it to him.—Somerset Standard.

Caught an Owl Alive.

H. W. Wehrle has received a live owl from Mrs. Martin Wiley of Blacklick, who caught the night wanderer in a trap. Mrs. Wiley had been losing guineas from her flock of barnyard denizens and finding their bodies partially consumed decided to set a trap near their roosting place. Several days later she found the owl fast in the trap. He was apparently uninjured. The bird was later shipped here.—Indiana Gazette.

Monessen Has a Gospel Wagon.

Monessen with its 15 or 16 church organizations now has a gospel wagon besides. The large van painted in brilliant yellow with many artistic gospel inscriptions of all kinds, came into the upper end of town yesterday, passing down Donner avenue. It stopped for a short time at Eighth street and Donner avenue. Perhaps the street car conductor at the local trolley line mapped out the course of the gospel van.—Monessen News.

A Dog's Suicide.

To the history of the famous Thompson avenue bridge, a new item may be added. That it can be used as a means of quick suicide was discovered by a dog. On Wednesday afternoon a brown, shaggy-coated canine was injured in Third street by a wagon. The suffering brute soon afterward scaled the cliff leading to the bridge, walked out to the middle and buried himself to the street below, meeting instant death.—Dunora American.

Starting a Balky Horse.

A big crowd had collected about a balky horse in Spangler the other day and every known trick for getting a stubborn nag to go had been tried in vain. R. B. He picked up a handful of mud and put it in the horse's mouth. He then whispered a few words in the equine's ear and said "git up." The horse started off.—Cambria Tribune.

At Palm Beach Mr. Jefferson used to spend much of his time on the steel pier which runs into the ocean a considerable distance. He was old enough to look the part and was extremely uncouth in his fishing garb.

"Are you not Alligator Joe?" the woman asked.

The old actor's eyes twinkled as he looked up at her and answered:

"I confess to the Joe, madam, but I deny the alligator."—New York Tribune.

IDEAL MAY DAY IN LOCAL PARKS

Mary and John and Their Brothers and Sisters Enjoy Charming Scenes.

DANDELION VERSUS TULIP

The glorious sunshine of an ideal May day yesterday transformed Pittsburgh parks into fairyland. The hillsides looked as if carpeted by emerald velvet, the trees shook out their festoons of luxuriant foliage, offering protecting shade to Mary and John, who sat there watching the endless procession of traps and carriages and automobiles and looking through the greensward at their feet for the gray Johnny-jump-up and his lucky neighbor, the four-leaved clover. And there were thousands of Marys and thousands of Johns in the parks to enjoy the unrivaled scene.

In Highland 50,000 tulips lifted their proud heads above the green turf. In Schenley park were 30,000 more. Viewed from some distance the flowers looked like armies on dress parade, with the soldiers extended in martial lines, wearing dazzling cockades of white and crimson. It was tulip day. Every visitor had a greeting for the new spring blooms, which were displayed along the walks and driveways of both parks.

Exhibition Not on the Program.

But there was another exhibition of flowers which was not officially catalogued by Supt. George W. Burke, and it far exceeded the magnitude of his show of tulips. If the Marys and Johns had taken their minds off one another they might have heard a conversation something like this:

"You are very proud with all your gaudy feathers."

"That's my privilege. I am the most beautiful flower in the park—the most gorgeous flower that grows."

"O long! You look like a $1 49 Easter bonnet."

"Tut, tut! You're only a dandelion."

"You bet I am, and proud am I to be a dandelion. I'm pure gold."

"Nonsense; you're only the yellow top of a weed, like a potato blossom or mustard top. I am splendid crimson and my neighbor here is as white as the lily."

"Yes, but I always stick to my colors."

"And your head soon turns gray and leaves you with a bald pate."

The Dandelion Asserts Itself.

"You boast because you have a turnout 50,000 strong. We are here by the million and have turned the grass plots to fields of gold. We reflect the sunshine and make people happy. We don't lift our heads so high, but we mingle in good society. Our chums are the sweet white clover, the violet and the pansy."

The dandelion was right. Much of the beauty of both Highland and Schenley would have been lacking had it not been for the acres of golden flowers which covered the landscape. Supt. Burke calls it his "unofficial" exhibition. It will last only a few days, but is worth seeing. Supt. Burke, by the way, is about the only friend the humble dandelion has. The visitors yesterday went into ecstacies over the tulips and the violets, but never a word was heard in praise of the modest flower, with its round yellow head.

Never was a more cosmopolitan crowd seen on parade in Pittsburgh. Belated Easter hats and gowns, which had been kept indoors on account of the chilly weather of previous Sundays, were brought forth in regal splendor. With this gaily-dressed throng were thousands of working people who took advantage of the day to give their little folks outdoor enjoyment.

Parade of Autos and Rigs.

It seemed that every turnout in town was on the boulevard, and a large number of new rigs were conspicuous in the show. It was likewise debut day for 1905-model automobiles, and these crowded the driveways with the vehicles.

And it was shirtwaist day and all the girls from all the suburbs and many of the small country towns aired their prettiest early summer patterns. And it bid fair, too, to be straw hat day. Several specimens of hot-weather headgear were on parade, but they were last year's left-overs, and the opening, like the dandelion display, lacked the official stamp.

Up in the brackets of one of the Venetian lanterns over the main entrance of the Carnegie library an old mother robin looked down on the thousands of people who passed. Visitors had heard of her and looked closer. They saw that she had built a nest in the fantastic surroundings and evidently was a secure tenant.

New Carnegie Proposition.

"You can't check off that Scotchman, no matter where you turn," observed one visitor. "We have Carnegie libraries, as we all know, and Carnegie pipe organs, Carnegie art galleries, Carnegie museums, Carnegie technical schools, Carnegie institutions, Carnegie hero commissions and the Carnegie superannuated schoolmaster's fund, but this is the first time I have encountered the Carnegie robin's roost."

Preparations are being made at the zoo for the two buffaloes which will be received from Howard Eaton's ranch. This will increase Father Pitt's herd to five, and with a practical demonstration of the anti-race suicide theory, it is hoped that the herd will be doubled within a few years. The crowds at the zoo were the largest of the season, the big animal house scarcely being large enough to accommodate the visitors. In celebration of the fine weather, the boating season was inaugurated on Lake Carnegie.

Palms from Many Lands.

Supt. Burke has sent letters to collectors and cultivators of plants in South America, Europe, Central America and the extreme western states inviting them to present prices on between 400 and 500 plants to be purchased this year by the city, nearly all palms of different varieties. Director Bigelow intends to spend between $4,000 and $5,000 for plants to be added to the palm house in the Phipps conservatory at Schenley park. The plants range in value from $50 to $250 a piece. The letting will be on June 1.

Contractor Thomas McNally has a force of men working day and night to finish the new oval or racing track in Schenley park before the Fourth of July. Work was started on the oval last fall, but the job has proved to be a much larger one than expected. In the grading the workmen had struck a thick strata of limestone, and it is necessary to do considerable blasting. Two steam drills and an oil well drill are being constantly used.

It is the intention to have the race track completed before the Fourth of July, in order that an elaborate program of sports and races may be given on that holiday. Director Bigelow expects to have one of the finest half-mile tracks in the country in Schenley park, and it is stated that the director is planning to have a street car line extended from Forbes street through Schenley park to connect with the oval, in order to furnish the crowds with quick and easy transportation whenever events are being given at the oval and also to shorten the distance for residents of the Squirrel Hill district to the city.

"I had a very bad case of heart trouble. For six months I could not work. Last July I was plowing corn and feeling bad all day; in the afternoon in plowing one row I had to lay down, or fall down, three times. My heart throbbed as though it would burst through, and I had difficulty in getting my breath. I purchased a bottle of Dr. Miles' Heart Cure, and before I had used half of it I could lay down and sleep all night. Previously I had to get up from five to ten times a night. I have taken several bottles, and my heart is as regular as clock work. I feel like a new man, and can work considerable for an old man, 84½ years old."

SOLEMNLY HONOR EAGLES' MEMORY

Well-Known Fraternal Order Holds Annual Services in Praise of Dead Brothers.

EULOGY BY W. J. BRENNEN

The annual services in memory of the brothers who died during the preceding twelve-month were held last night by the Pittsburgh Aerie No. 78, Fraternal Order of Eagles, in the Grand opera house. The house was crowded with an attentive audience, conspicuous among the auditors being relatives and friends of some of the deceased.

The printed program contained the names of Charles J. Ryan, Thomas P. Geary, Thomas Bryan, William H. Walker, William S. Hermann, Harry W. Hanna, John C. Gotthart and ex-Mayor Henry P. Ford, who had died since the last memorial, but when the roll of the dead was called the name of Edward Vincent King was added, Mr. King having died earlier in the day.

The exercises opened with the Eagles' ode, sung to the air of "Home, Sweet Home," the audience joining in the singing. The impressive memorial exercises followed. Worthy President Joseph F. Joyce read the ritualistic memorial, and the Worthy Past President Robert G. Rowlarson, continued the service according to the ritual. The secretary, A. J. Dougherty, called the roll of the dead. Each name was pronounced distinctly twice and then the bell was tolled. A. J. Edwards closed the services with the prayer of the ritual.

A large part of the ensuing program consisted of vocal music, interspersed with selections played by Dannhardt's orchestra. "Lead, Kindly Light" was sung by a quartet composed of Mrs. Edith H. Scott, Miss Anna G. Clark, S. G. Heddoe and D. S. Harris. "The Vacant Chair" and "Nearer My God to Thee," were sung by St. Peter's choir boys, Miss Mary A. McCallister being the accompanist. Mrs. Scott sang Dunstan's "The Ninety and Nine," Miss Clark "I Mourn as a Dove," Miss Mary Fallon "Face to Face," and the quartet "The Evening Shadows" and "Abide With Me," accompanied by Miss Elizabeth F. Davis. Joseph T. McDermott recited "If We Only Understood."

William J. Brennen delivered the eulogy on the dead, mentioning them by name and explaining the reasons for holding memorial services annually. Some of the dead were older men, he said, with a useful life behind them, while others were in their prime. Their brothers in the order should emulate their virtues.

The memorial services ended with the singing of the closing ode, sung by the members of the order and the audience, to the air of "Auld Lang Syne."

The stage was beautifully decorated. At the back was the order's emblem, the eagle, outlined in colored electric lights and flanked with palms. Palms were banked behind the footlights and flowers stood on the official stands of the officers who sat on the stage.

The memorial committee was composed of Joseph F. Joyce, chairman; A. J. Dougherty, secretary; R. G. Robinson William J. Brennen, J. S. Flannery, C. S Black, John M. Morin, Edward McLaughlin, J. F. O'Toole, P. J. Fahey, D. A. McGee, John Flinn, T. A. Joyce, P. J. Barry, E. R. Kunzler, L. C. Ludwig, Joseph Jones, H. C. Sheaff and John F. Mullen.

NEGRO JUMPS TO FREEDOM.

Leaves Part of His Shirt in the Hands of the Man He Had Robbed of His Pants.

Detective William Riley last night arrested James Johnston, a negro, of 39 Chatham street, and he is being held as a suspicious person at the Central station. Early yesterday morning a negro burglar climbed to the second story room of J. L. Tusch, rear of 144 Congress street, and stole Tusch's trousers, which contained $58.

The burglar awakened Tusch, who got up and ran at the thief. The robber darted for the window and jumped through. As he made the leap Tusch caught the sleeve of his shirt, but it tore and the negro dropped. The burglar landed on his feet 20 feet below and escaped. The officer learned that Johnston was stopping just in the rear of Tusch's rooms and he is suspected of knowing something about the robbery. Johnston is 20 years old and denies he had anything to do with the affair. Tusch partly identified Johnston as the man who was in his rooms.

The Death Roll.

Frank C. Bretholte.

Frank Christian Bretholte died yesterday at his home at 410 Fifth avenue, Carnegie. Mr. Bretholte was born in Hahben, West Fahlen, Germany, in 1830, and came to this country in 1856, when he secured a position as clerk with the wholesale grocery firm of William Heninge, this city. In 1870 he engaged in the retail grocery business in Federal street, Allegheny, until 1882, when he went to Carnegie, where he has since conducted a grocery. He was one of the most prominent citizens of the borough, serving two terms in council and being engaged in many financial enterprises. He was formerly a director of the First National bank of Carnegie, and when that institution was merged with the Carnegie Trust Company became a director of the new company. In 1875 he was married to Miss Louise Luebbe of Pittsburgh, who died in 1905, leaving five children, all of whom survive their father. They are: Frederick, Harry, Miss Minnie, Miss Matilda and Frank Bretholte, Jr., all of Carnegie. He was an active member of the Carnegie German Lutheran church and was formerly a trustee and treasurer of that church.

Edward Vincent King.

Edward Vincent King, aged 21, son of the late Edward and Ann King, died yesterday at his home, 2022 Penn avenue, after four months' illness of tuberculosis. He was born in Elkins, W. Va., and had been a resident of Pittsburgh for the past 14 years. He was connected with the firm of Wolf & Walker of the South Side for seven years, and was a member of St. Agnes' Roman Catholic church and of Pittsburgh Aerie No. 76, Fraternal Order of Eagles. He is survived by a brother, C. C. King, division superintendent of the Pittsburgh Railways Company, and three sisters, Rose and Beatrice of this city and Mrs. W. E. Boylan of Cleveland. Funeral services will be held at St. Agnes' tomorrow at 2:30 p. m., and the interment will be in St. Vincent's cemetery at Elkins, W. Va., on Wednesday.

He is survived by one stepdaughter, Mrs. Mary Reese of Wilkinsburg.

Peter Knoblock, 49 years old, died at his home in Southeast Greensburg Saturday night. He was a printer and had been connected with printing establishments in Greensburg for a quarter of a century. He is survived by a widow and seven children. He is also survived by two brothers, Barney Knoblock of Pittsburgh, and George Knoblock of Patersm, N. J., and two sisters, Mrs. Daniel Gightner and Mrs. Lizzie Greenwood of Greensburg. His mother lives in Pittsburgh.

LEGAL BARRIER AGAINST LEASE

Committee of Philadelphia Town Meeting Will Try to Block Gas Deal.

NO OTHER BIDDING PROBABLE

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU, Press Building, PHILADELPHIA, PA., May 7.

If a legal barrier can be found it will be used to prevent the city from extending its gas lease with the United Gas Improvement Company. The committee of nine, appointed by John H. Converse under authority given by the Academy of Music town meeting, is scheduled to meet tomorrow. It is understood that the committee will recommend legal action of some character, but the nature of the proposed procedure is not known.

Those fighting the 75-year extension of the gas lease have claimed that there would be plenty of competition, and that at least four syndicates besides the United Gas Improvement Company would submit bids. If this is expected the talk of an injunction seems out of place. With five bona fide bidders in the field the charge of favoritism or irregularity is dissipated. But the probable facts are that no interests of sufficient financial magnitude care to invest upward of $25,000,000 on a proposition having so little political security. The city authorities and the officials of the United Gas Improvement Company are on close terms. There is little doubt but that they have already agreed upon the terms of extension, terms subject, possibly, to slight concessions by the company, but which will be ratified when councils act.

If a new syndicate were to outbid the United Gas Improvement Company it might face certain restrictions and handicaps not imposed at present. These openly discussed probabilities make the outlook dubious for new capital, and it will hardly figure in the final result. The bid or bids will be opened May 15.

WEDDING IS DELAYED BECAUSE OF LATE TRAIN

A wedding was postponed last night because the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie special train with the Henry W. Savage opera company was late in reaching Pittsburgh. Miss Grace Bauer, a member of the chorus, whose home is in Pittsburgh, was to have married W. C. Brockmeyer of the Avenue dramatic company, as soon as the company would arrive in Pittsburgh. The train was scheduled to reach here at 9 o'clock last night, but was delayed and the nuptials were postponed until today. At the end of the week the bridegroom will join the Savage forces and the balance of the season's tour will be their honeymoon.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

CINCINNATI, O., May 7.—The Pirates won today because they could not help it. Ewing, wild, pitched the game away. While the Pirates were making their humble efforts to hand over the game, the multitude was learning "the lesson of the spit ball."

It was just such a lesson as Jack Chesbro taught a great concourse of fans at the New York American league park at the end of the American season when he delivered the pennant to Boston on a wild pitch.

Ewing used the spit ball and used it on both sides of the plate. Schiel was unable to do more than grapple with the wild shoots and slants that the wet ball took. Ewing made four wild pitches and these misdirected throws added to two bases on balls, cost two runs and the game.

The Pirates showed bad judgment on two occasions, when they were caught with the goods on them, to doctor the ball so that Ewing would have to abandon the delivery. "He spit something on it," was the inelegant howl of Miller Huggins as he saw McBride, the Pirate youngster, "spray" a new ball. Umpire Bauswine called for the spice and found it decoyed in spatters with licorice. Another time Wagner was caught with the ball as the Pirates were coming in and an inspection showed that he had emptied a bottle of some lively chemical on the ball. Both times the ball was put out of play. The incidents simply showed that the Pirates were much afraid of "Long Bob's" spit ball. They could not hit it any more than Schiel could catch it or Ewing could tell where it was going, for only seven bingles were made against Ewing in ten innings.

Robertaille pitched good steady ball in all except the third and fourth innings. His support put him in the final jeopardy from which vagrant spit balls rescued him.

The ninth inning was filled to the brim with excitement when the tie was made. McBride's wild throw on Dolan let Huggins in with the tying run. Ewing passed Clarke and immediately thereafter unhooked his last two wild pitches and Clarke scored the winning run. The score:

EAST VS. WEST.

NEW HAVEN, CONN., May 7.—(Special.)—An annual intercollegiate meet of national breadth is under consideration by the Intercollegiate Athletic association of the eastern states and also by the corresponding association in the west. Yale's representative, Walter N. Stillman, and probably all of the committee on intercollegiate athletic meets favors the scheme, which is, in brief, to hold a competition between point winners in the two big athletic meets of the American college world, at a date later than the sectional contests. Early in June would be the time favored.

TIGERS AND QUAKERS WILL PRESS YALE HARD

Yale's chances of scoring a decisive victory at the intercollegiate championships on May 26 and 27 of this year received a decided setback Saturday owing to the fine showing of the Pennsylvania and Cornell teams in their dual sports with Columbia and Princeton respectively. These sports indicate that both of these teams will be greater factors in this year's games than they have been for some years. Unfortunately for Yale in several instances, the Cornell and Pennsylvania men are strongest where Yale had been counting on scoring easy points.

Amsler of Pennsylvania and Ashburner of Cornell seem better than any hurdler that Murphy has, and it will take 15 2-5 seconds to beat them. Amsler showed on Saturday that he has really struck his gait and that his performance at the relay races was no flash in the pan. He won the high hurdles in the easiest kind of a fashion in 16 seconds, while his showing in the low hurdles indicates that he will be right to the front in this event also. Here Murphy considered himself sure with Cates, but on Saturday's form Cates will have to do better than he has ever done to beat Amsler.

In the pole vault Yale has been granted first surely, but Jackson of Cornell cleared 11 feet 9¾ inches, and must be given equal recognition. Penn's vaulters also showed improvement over anything they have done to date. Penn showed another possible point winner in the high jump when McDonald cleared 5 feet 11 inches. Privately Murphy has been stating that his milers would win out, as he had three who have beaten 4 minutes 30 seconds in their trials this year, but Munson's 4 minutes 25 2-5 seconds indicates that but little chances of victory are to be seen in this event, while as usual Cornell's two-milers showed great form.

The performances of some of the Princeton and Columbia men were also noteworthy. Williams, the Tiger, showed great improvement in his mile from taking second to Munson and doing better than 4 minutes 29 seconds. He should get second in this event again at the intercollegiate championships. Rulon Miller also ran faster than he did at the relays and he will have to be reckoned with in the sprints. Both he and Dear of Penn did 16 seconds. Knakel of Columbia also showed fine form in the 100, in which Dear beat him only six inches.

The above performances show that Yale will have to strain every nerve to win, and though she should be victorious, still this year's meet promises the best sport ever seen at these games. Harvard is still the dark horse, but her form will be fully shown at the dual games with Yale.

The great showing of Cornell and Pennsylvania on Saturday brings their dual games on Friday of this week at Philadelphia very much to the front.

L. DOYLE TO JOIN PITTSBURGH COLLEGIANS

He will be a guest of Lon Doyle in Pittsburgh this summer.

HINDOO RETURNS TO THE CHARGE

Analyzes Buying Power of Dollar and Rupee to Prove His Point About Missionaries.

BRITISH MISRULE DESCRIBED

"'Out of thine own mouth will I judge thee.' I said that the Christian missionaries sent to India live in luxury, and to proof of my statement is contained in The Gazette this morning, in the interview with Miss Kellogg. It is true that Miss Kellogg does not intend her remarks to be taken as proof of my charge, but I will show that the proof is contained in her very words."

Thus Prof. N. Kanskaw of Bombay, India, returned yesterday to the attack upon some of the missionaries in India, the first guns of which brought forth Miss Kellogg's vigorous reply.

"Don't misunderstand me," said Prof. Kanskaw. "There are many missionaries whom I respect, who are Christ-fearing, zealous, hardworking men and women. My remarks were directed to the far larger number of missionaries who have not those qualities.

"Miss Kellogg says the missionaries shut themselves up to a salary of $800 or $1,000 a year, with a house and $100 for each child they may be blessed with until that child is 18. She asks if a missionary can revel in luxury on that income. This is my reply:

The Dollar and the Rupee.

"The sum of $1,000 is equal to 3,000 rupees in India, and in India one rupee is equal in purchasing power to $1 of American money, at a moderate estimate; therefore the missionary's $1,000 salary is the same as if he were getting $3,000 in this country. Would not the average rural minister in America be well satisfied if he got one half of that salary? How many country ministers receive $1,500 a year in this country?

"As a fair-minded man I do not dispute the right of the missionary from northern climes to surround himself with servants in India's hot climate, but what do his servants cost him? The missionary secures for $3.25 a month a man who does the marketing, cooks and waits on the table, who is in fact a chef, steward and waiter all combined. And out of that wage this factotum pays for his own food. Other servants, nurses, gardeners, coachmen, receive from $2.50 to $3 a month, and 'find' themselves. The missionary can hire a nurse for every one of his $100 children and yet pay only 30 per cent of the sum for the nurse's hire.

Railroad Travel Is Cheap.

"Traveling on the railroads is cheap in India, much cheaper than here: even traveling by first-class. In Bombay, one of the dearest cities in India, one can have the use of a horse and carriage, with wages of the driver and horse feed thrown in, for $16.50 a month, and in the rural districts it would cost the missionary much less. Food is cheap in India. The best cuts of beef cost from 3 to 4 cents a pound, a live sheep or goat costs $1.25. In supplying rations to workmen the cost per head for rice is 50 cents a month, and the Indian workman eats much rice. When I left Bombay I bought 12 shirts there, at one rupee apiece, and I find that in this country a shirt of similar quality costs me $1.50.

"I said the missionary's salary was equivalent to $3,000 in this country; I really believe that, taking what he can buy in necessities, comforts and luxuries with that money, its real value is rather more like $6,000. All Europeans take to the mountains during the hot season. European civilian officers receiving big salaries find that they cannot afford to stay at those expensive places more than from 50 to 60 days. The average missionary, on his salary of a little more than $80 a month, spends four months at the summer resorts. Rather fond of luxury, isn't he?

"Miss Kellogg said, 'our religion is not one of asceticism.' I fully agree with her.

"There are words in the Christian Bible which command one to go with the scripture and not with the purse. If the missionary does his work for love of Christ and for the benefit of the poor natives, why does he not take only half the salary? Think how many more Christian missionaries could be sent to India if the scale of wages were cut down one-half.

From the Native Standpoint.

"But the main objection to the missionary in India from the natives of India is not that he lives well. It is true that he appeals for funds for the starving natives, but why does he not tell the great American people why the natives of India are poor and starving and oppressed. Why does he not tell America that the native farmer in India pays 40 per cent of his income from the land in taxes? Why does he not tell that, because of British misrule, the population is decreasing; that while from 1881 to 1891 the increase in population was 11½ per cent, the present rate of increase is so infinitesimal that at the next census it will be found to be only 1½ per cent?

"Why not keep the missionaries in America? I admire America. We patriotic Hindoos are proud of Washington, Jefferson and Lincoln. Yet in my stay of three months in this country I have seen college professors who are underpaid, children who are growing up under such conditions that they are bound to become criminals. It seems to me that missionaries are needed in this country.

"Send us missionaries, if you like, but not the missionaries you have been sending us. Send us missionaries who are college professors; send us missionaries like Edison, like Westinghouse. Send us men who will tell the Christian world of the misrule under which the natives of India are suffering. You won't hear it from the missionaries you are now sending us, but read books written by unprejudiced Englishmen, by Digby, by Sir Henry Cotton. Let Americans read them, and I venture to say that they will agree with me when I say that we need a different sort of missionaries."

Hillstrand, who was in charge of the Salvation army corps in this place, and Miss Cochrane, a recent convert, have disappeared, the captain's wife and little child being left behind. THE THREE RIVERS

The stage of water at Davis Island dam at 9 o'clock last night was 5.9 feet, and the river was falling.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

CINCINNATI, O., May 7.—At 6 p. m. today the stage of the Ohio river at Cincinnati was 14.9 feet and falling. Departures of packets from the port of Cincinnati were: The Courier, Maysville; City of Louisville, Louisville. The excursion season opened today on the river. All of the boats enjoyed a large patronage. Because the Queen City of the Pittsburgh and Cincinnati packet line will have aboard the rivers and harbors committee of the national congress, the company will send out two boats to Pittsburgh this week instead of three. When the Queen City returns the regular places of the boats in the trade will be resumed. Clear and warm.

LOUISVILLE—River falling; canal, 6.8 feet; on falls, 4.6 feet; below locks, 15.3 feet. Clear and warm.

FORTUNE PLAYS PRANKS WITH GROVE CITY MAN

N. H. Holstein Falls Out of Window and Is Held in Allegheny Hospital Because He Has No Clothes.

Fortune played strange pranks all day yesterday with N. H. Holstein, aged 50, a horse dealer of Grove City, Pa., and it is probable Holstein will remember his over Sunday visit to Allegheny for a long time. He came to Pittsburgh on Saturday on business and intended to remain in the city till tomorrow. He called upon a friend, P. B. Hendershot of 1202 Palo Alto street, Allegheny, with whom he had some business to transact.

Holstein remained at Hendershot's home all night, and when the time came to retire Holstein was assigned to a bedroom on the third floor rear. The two men sat in Hendershot's bedroom talking till about 2 a. m. when Holstein left Hendershot and went to his own room. About 3:20 a. m. the people in the house were awakened by a loud crash, and upon investigation they found Holstein had fallen out of the third story window into the yard in the rear of the house.

Holstein alighted on a cellar door, which was made of boards seven-eighths of an inch thick. When the occupants of the house reached his side they found Holstein tightly wedged in the cellar doors, through which he had broken in his fall, with only his head and legs in sight. The remainder of his body was occupying space in the cellar way. The police were notified, and when they arrived Holstein was extricated from his position. He was conscious, and when asked how he came to fall out of the window, replied that he dreamed he was in a runaway. It is thought after Holstein retired he got up and walked out of the window in his sleep.

Holstein was removed to the Allegheny General hospital, where the physician found he had suffered only slight bruises about the body in his fall of about 30 feet. Aside from a severe shaking up he was not hurt, and an order was made out for his discharge, but fate in her curious pranks was not through with Holstein yet. When the hospital officials were ready to let him leave the hospital, shortly before noon, they discovered that Holstein on being admitted wore only his underclothes, and he was compelled to remain in the hospital several hours longer until his clothes were taken to him.

NAN PATTERSON SINGS IN PRISON

Chorus Girl Conspicuous in the Tombs Chapel Arrayed in New Silk Gown.

IS CONFIDENT OF FREEDOM

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU, Herald Building, Herald Square, NEW YORK, May 7.

Arrayed in her new silk gown and all the finery she possesses, with a touch of rouge on either cheek and her hair exaggeratedly pompadour, Nan Patterson swept into the Protestant chapel in the Tombs this morning and took a seat well to the front where she could be seen by all.

In severe contrast to the girl accused of slaying "Cesar" Young was her sister Julia, who looked thin and pale and worn. She had paid little attention to her toilet, and seemed to shrink behind her sister when the male prisoners stared at her.

Nan was all vivacity. She had received a visit from Mr. Levy, of her counsel, late Saturday afternoon, and his communication had completely restored the young woman to her former self. She hummed snatches of songs as she dressed for chapel and talked incessantly of what she would do when she obtained her liberty, which, it is said, she was assured would be immediately.

In chapel Nan sang "Nearer, My God, to Thee," "Jesus, Lover of My Soul" and "Rock of Ages."

"She can sing," remarked the deputy warden as he gazed at the chorus girl.

Nan and her sister do not subsist upon prison fare. They dine upon meals furnished from the Tombs restaurant. Today they ordered liberally, and Nan ate ravenously, while Julia barely touched her food.

Mr. Levy expresses himself as confident that his client will not again be placed on trial. It is understood that Mr. Levy will demand tomorrow that Mr. Jerome elect whether he shall release Miss Patterson, accept bail, or try her again. It is said that Mr. Jerome may keep her in the Tombs two months longer if he chooses to do so.

It is understood the bondsman whom Miss Patterson's lawyers have announced is ready to act as surety for her in any reasonable amount is Edward J. Sparenberg, a retired pawnbroker of this city. Sparenberg is an intimate friend of one of the Patterson girl's attorneys and it was in this way his interest was aroused in her case.

Pulls Pistol and Is Fined.

Parker Squires was fined $50 and costs or 90 days to the workhouse at Central station yesterday for drawing a revolver on a pool room proprietor on Elm street, Rose Price, a negress, received the same sentence for fighting and breaking a lot of dishes in a house in Tunnel street. Selia Moffat, a Syrian, was fined $5 and costs for allowing pool playing in his place after midnight, and nine men who were shooting the balls around were fined $1 and costs. One of them, who had a pair of knucklers in his pockets, was fined an additional $50 and costs or 90 days to the workhouse.

Chases Wife With Knife.

A fine of $50 was imposed on Harry Magall at No. 3 police station yesterday morning. Magall lives in the rear of 1905 Penn avenue and for a week is said to have been breaking windows in the house. Saturday night he chased his wife to the street with a knife. Officer Melkofki arrested him. If he fails to pay the fine he will go to the workhouse for 90 days.

RUSSIANS DEMAND REAL CITIZENSHIP

Agitation for Political Freedom Spreads Throughout the Entire Empire.

RAPID INDUSTRIAL PROGRESS

(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)

ST. PETERSBURG, April 29.—Interesting facts pertaining to the present political situation in Russia are contained in a letter written for the Associated Press by one of the most prominent and active Liberals in the empire. He is a large landed proprietor, a marshal of nobility, with a mansion in St. Petersburg, but distinctly a man of the provinces. He had a large share in drafting the famous zemstvo memorial and his words will have added interest when it is stated that after "Bloody Sunday" when the Liberals were talking of a provisional government his name was on every lip. Should there be a constitutional regime in Russia his name and fame will loom large. He says in part:

These districts which have remained farthest behind economically and socially are least inclined to yield to the general political fermentation which is taking hold of the country. The central agricultural districts of Russia, where serfdom was most pronounced, has yielded least to the destructive and creative forces of modern industrialism.

Advancement in Greater Area.

But the whole extensive territory of the Volga basin, the Northwest and Baltic provinces, the Ural districts and Poland, the whole south and the Caucasus; in a word almost the whole great periphery of the country, except the distant and thinly populated borders advanced, in the last half of the nineteenth century, rapidly and decisively along the road of capitalistic and industrial development.

Greater complexity of life was naturally accompanied by increased complexity of social relations, the grouping of classes, the concentration of public forces and the deep stirring of political self-consciousness. Now only Central Russia, where exist practically only two classes—the inert and ignorant peasantry and the nobility—true to the traditions of days of serfdom, hold more aloof from the great political movement which has taken possession of the remainder of the country.

In essence the present political movement in Russia is a fight of the advanced classes of the people against the autocratic-bureaucratic governmental organization of the country. Having grown up and strengthened itself upon the condition of serfdom, the Russian bureaucracy has developed to the maximum of all the negative qualities which naturally inhere in bureaucracy and has become an all-powerful autocratic machine, everywhere opposed to the true interests of the people.

To Throw Off Political Slavery.

Nevertheless the development of the life of the people, the classes, with sharply defined and mutually antagonistic interests, has gone on. The rapid development of the mill and manufacturing industry, zealously protected and encouraged by the government, has created an industrial bourgeoisie and proletariat. The capitalization of agriculture also created a strong land-owning class.

The government's protection of the manufacturing industry was considered harmful to agriculture and sowed antagonism between the agricultural and industrial bourgeoisie.

Nevertheless all classes, in spite of the mutual conflict of economic interests, at the present moment, have joined in a common endeavor to attain a great common purpose. Representing the real creative forces of the country, they will no longer consent to political slavery. They wish to transform themselves from mere servants of the bureaucracy, in whose hands they are as clay, into true citizens possessed of full political and civic rights.

FOUR PROPHETS OF EXPANSION

The Rev. George W. Taft Identifies Them as Being Isaiah, Luther, Paul and Carey.

TELLS OF ACHIEVEMENTS

"Four Prophets of Expansion," was the sermon theme of the Rev. George W. Taft in the Homewood Baptist church last evening. The pastor identified the four prophets, as Isaiah, Paul, Luther and Carey, and taking for his text Matthew xxviii:19: "Go ye therefore and teach all nations," said in part:

Imperial events usually cluster about imperial characters. Witness the times and life of Alexander, Caesar, Charlemagne, Cromwell, Peter the Great, Washington, Lincoln, Bismarck and Rhodes. It is so in the history of the Jewish and Christian churches. The biography of Abraham and the Patriarchs, Moses and a few other prophets, David and a few kings, give us the major part of our old testament history. The biographies of Jesus, John the Baptist, Paul and the apostolic band tell us the new testament story.

In the nearly 2,000 years of history since then the complete lives of not more than 100 men would give us most of the events that are worth remembering by any except the special students of church history. These great men have had their own sphere of work and their own task to accomplish. The four that I have named apart from the one character, Jesus Christ, loom like great mountain peaks above all the rest as the prophets of expansion. To them was given the imperial vision to see and to declare that the kingdom of God was a world-wide domain.

Isaiah the prophet-statesman had a message for kings. Ahaz, one of the kings, would not hear that message. He would make seeming present necessity the ground for unholy foreign and heathen alliances. The present glory of Israel would be deferred, but God's plans could not be thwarted by Ahaz. God's plans could be carried out as the name of Isaiah's son Shearjashub indicates, a remnant should turn to the Lord. In that remnant was Israel's hope, for from it should come forth a virgin's son who would bring honor and glory to Israel, and not to Israel alone, but to "all nations," and "the earth shall be full of the knowledge of the Lord as the waters cover the sea."

Above all old testament prophets Isaiah saw that the coming Messiah was one in whom "shall all families of the earth be blessed." In him and with him faith played a most important part, for centuries would come and go before the nations would flow to the mountain of the Lord's house. Before the time of Christ Isaiah stands unique and supreme as the imperialist for the Kingdom of God.

Paul heard the call and turned to the Gentiles. The Roman empire with its Roman government, Roman roads, Roman tolerance, Roman and Greek languages and culture and with the "dispersion" and Jewish synagogues everywhere furnished the background. The Messiah who had come as the world's Savior and given His world message had appeared to Paul on the way to Damascus and furnished him the motive. Henceforth it was Christ for the world and the world for Christ, and as this prophet he was verily the chiefest among all the apostles.

Luther is the next one to be placed among this band. Many great men of God had arisen and millions of adherents had been won to the cross, but practically the field of Christianity was limited to the confines of the old Roman empire and its successors. And what is more, for several centuries the church had been assuming a form which would make the scope of Christianity coextensive with the realms of Catholic sovereigns alone. Luther, in the doctrine of justification by faith, again gave a message that was unlimited and applied to all lands. Luther's background is seen in discoveries, inventions, political conditions and the renaissance of learning. The reformation and the rise of Protestantism and the reaction which stirred the Catholics so that they went "into the regions beyond," furnished the rest of this picture. Of this whole age Luther is easily the central figure and prophet.

Carey is the last of this most glorious quartet. Isaiah saw the coming Messiah who was to have a world-wide domain. Paul beholding the risen Christ and bearing his commission was the great prophet of the movement whose spirit was world-wide but whose limit for many centuries was the Roman world. Luther caught the spirit of Jesus as interpreted by Paul and reclaimed truth that would not be satisfied with less than universal acceptance, and when the time was ripe. Carey arose as the prophet of the present missionary age whose purpose, aim and effort is to take all peoples, tribes and tongues for Jesus Christ.

Different ages, different conditions, different languages, had these four world prophets, and yet in spirit, vision and far-reaching outlook they were brethren. It was not accidental that Carey was an Englishman whose language was, even then becoming more than any other the language of the world, and that the British empire was the one domain on whose shores the sun never sets, that ecclesiastically he held the principles advocated by the other world prophets, Milton, Bunyan and Roger Williams, as they stood for religious freedom, and that his message was just being heard when steam and electricity could be used as hand-maidens of the gospel. Before Carey there had been many noble efforts to win this people or that tribe to Christ and there were hundreds of missionary heroes, but from Carey and beginning with Carey, Christendom is settled in her supreme effort to make the kingdoms of this world the Kingdoms of our Lord and of his Christ. This is the age in which we are living.

BUSINESS OF THE CHURCH.

General Missionary of Minnesota Tells of Its Purposes and Its Chief Work.

The Rev. William Wilkinson general missionary in Minnesota, occupied the pulpit of St. Peter's Protestan Episcopal church, Forbes street, last night, and took for his sermon theme, "The Business of the Church." Reviewing the purposes and needs of the church, the speaker said in part:

Nothing is more peculiar than the view many people, some of them church goers, take of the business of the church. They mistake the accidental, the transient, for the vital; the passing for the abiding, the indispensable, the faith. It is the business of the church to perfect the beautiful, and, if you please, the ornate in her public service, but it is not the chief mission of the church to sing psalms, to order forms or to recite set prayers. Her vocation, her calling, her main work is nobler than this. She is to represent the kingdom of God in this world; to teach the rules of the kingdom. To tell the world in plain, unmistakable language about God—who He is, what He is, what He wills and why He wills it; to set forth in words which an unlettered and simple, honest-minded man cannot fail to understand, the great facts of sin and its consequences.

We are a composite race. We are producing a new type of man, rich as no man ever has been in inventive, in applied power, in all walks of commercial and industrial lines. It is the first business of the church here on these shores to weld into one brotherhood all our people. This can be done on no other platform. You cannot do it on knowledge, temperance, or word, or cash, or citizenship alone. All such efforts have always resulted in dismal failure.

Are pain and sorrow less with us than they were with the men of Galilee? Is disease and death less real now than of old? Do not men now need to be told of sin and salvation as much as when St. Paul stood on Mars hill? Are men in less need of a divine voice to call with clear tones and unmistakable knowledge of the truth that all men are made in God's image and that He wills their happiness and usefulness and salvation? To be a great light and life and joy and purifying force—this is the business of the church.

NEED OF GOSPEL IN THE CITIES

Rev. Dr. Warren G. Partridge Tells of Influences of the Centers of Population.

CITES THE PLAN OF CHRIST

"The Evangelization of the Cities," was the sermon theme of the Rev. Dr. Warren G. Partridge in the Fourth Avenue Baptist church yesterday morning. Dr. Partridge called attention to the fact that nations are influenced by the convictions and sentiments of their cities, and for that reason advocated a stronger effort toward evangelizing the great centers of population. He dwelt upon the importance of Christianizing the great flood of foreign immigration, and said in part:

The city is the strategic point in modern civilization. It has been the divine plan to conquer the cities for Christ and his gospel. Jerusalem was the metropolis of the Jewish nation. The founder of Christianity was a statesman, and he commanded his disciples to begin the evangelization of the world in this ancient capital. Jesus' command was: "Repentance and remission of sins should be preached in His name unto all nations, beginning in Jerusalem." The apostles set out immediately for the cities as the best places to found the early churches. Paul worked three years in the city of Cesarea and several years in Rome, the metropolis of the world. We also see St. Paul organizing missions in Corinth, Ephesus, Philippi, Antioch, and in the cities generally of Asia Minor, Greece and Italy. Cities in the first century, as well as in the twentieth century, were the teeming centers of influence.

The cities of St. Petersburg and Moscow have a tremendous influence upon the public opinion and destiny of Russia. The city of Tokyo has a commanding power in influencing the entire empire of Japan. Cities have been conspicuous in all the history of Christianity. In the cities largely have been sown the seeds of liberty, revolution, invention, discovery, conflicts of labor and capital, and most of the problems of the commercialism and industrialism. The eyes of the world are now turned upon the city of Chicago, in its titanic grapple of labor and capital. Many of the burning questions of modern civilization must be settled in the complex life of our great cities. In the book of Revelation St. John addresses a special message to the seven cities of Asia, because these seven cities would have a tremendous influence upon the world.

America wants to know today what is being thought, said and done in the cities of New York, Chicago, Pittsburgh and other great centers of American civilization. The churches of such cities have a dominating power upon ethical and spiritual and civic life in our republic. The cities are growing very rapidly, and they will have a greater influence upon the world in the future than in the past. Christians who live in cities have greater opportunities and greater responsibilities than other men.

One hundred years ago only one-thirtieth of our population lived in cities. Our grandfathers did not have the problems to face which we have today. About one-third of our population today live in cities. A complete revolution has taken place in industrial conditions. There are many causes of this centralization of population. We must, as Christians and patriots, face the problem of immigration. These foreigners must be evangelized. We must teach their children the gospel and love for our laws and country. Our city churches must put more zeal and energy into reaching the masses. Old methods of church work will not do. We need new methods to cope with new conditions. Our churches must adopt new methods to reach the children and young men and women. We must emphasize the educational and spiritual. We must do more for the social life of the people. All nations are now at our doors, and we can preach the gospel to almost every nation of the earth in Pittsburgh. Home mission work is almost identical with foreign mission work, for all races are crowding into our great cities. There was never before such an opportunity for the church to evangelize the world as at this hour. Many foreigners who become Christians in Pittsburgh will take the gospel to the ends of the earth.

HOLDS THREE SERVICES.

First Presbyterian Church Tries Experiment With Much Success.

An innovation which promises to become a permanent fixture was inaugurated in the First Presbyterian church, Sixth avenue, yesterday, when three services were held during the day. An afternoon service has been added to replace the evening service for members of the congregation, so that the general public may find sufficient room to attend the evening services.

Large congregations attended all three services yesterday, and in the afternoon, the pastor, the Rev. Dr. Maitland Alexander, preached the first of a series of sermons on "Eventful Days in the Life of St. Paul." A choir of 16 voices rendered special music at all services.

New Rector's First Sermon.

The Rev. Hal Sadtler, the new rector of the St. Paul's Protestant Episcopal church, Center avenue and Watt street, conducted services in the church for the first time yesterday afternoon. Mr. Sadtler is recently of Grace church, New York city. He takes the place of the Rev. Raymond H. Edwards, who left St. Paul's last December to accept a charge at Meadville, Pa. Next Wednesday the ladies of St. Paul's church will tender a reception to the new rector at the home of James E. Cowan in Webster avenue.

Will Lecture in Brushton.

The Rev. Dr. E. L. Eaton, pastor of the North Avenue Methodist Episcopal church, Allegheny, will deliver a lecture in the Brushton Methodist Episcopal church tonight, his subject being, "Ghosts, Goblins and Witches." Assisting in the entertainment will be the Hadyn quartet, made up of members from the Apollo club, and John Roberts, soloist. The proceeds will be devoted to the music department of the church.

Falls in Front of Trailer.

Axel Emanuslarsen, who lives at 2506 Penn avenue, fell between a Highland park car and its trailer yesterday afternoon and was badly hurt. He attempted to board the leading car at Penn avenue and Twenty-fifth street and lost his balance. A quick stop saved his life, but his head was cut and his back and shoulders bruised. He was sent to the West Penn hospital.

UNDERLYING CONDITIONS FAVOR STOCK MARKET

Reports of Business and Industrial Activity, Satisfactory Railroad Earnings and Excellent Harvest Prospects Will Influence Future Trading.

[By Private Wire to The Gazette.]

NEW YORK, May 7.—Little, if any, light was thrown upon the future of the security market as a result of last week's developments. News in itself was by no means unfavorable. It dealt chiefly with continued favorable reports of business and industrial conditions, satisfactory railway earnings and excellent harvest prospects. These are the fundamentals of the situation, and, according to all accounts, the underlying conditions are highly promising. They will exert their full force in the general industrial and financial scheme in time, if, in fact, they have not done so already. Their existence in the past was duly chronicled, and through many months these were the features that advancing prices were said to be discounting.

But Wall street is now fully aware of the fact that satisfactory underlying conditions of trade, commerce and agriculture alone cannot sustain prices. It has the proof to the contrary in the recent market collapse, occurring at a time when these promises were most brilliant. As a result of the recent forceful demonstration, the truth of the assertion that prices cannot forever be sustained above normal value, and that many factors, not a few alone, must be reckoned upon in considering a security market, must have dawned upon many who lightly ignored warnings in the past.

The price movements of the week were marked by much irregularity, clearly enough reflections of conflicting sentiment and conflicting interests. Such spasmodic declines and advances as occurred are normal to the situation. A stock market collapse is really an awakening. Someone or some party really is first to see that things are not as represented or as they should be, and gives force to that knowledge by disposing of security holdings by selling short or by a combination of both operations.

It is impossible for all diversified interests to pass scatheless through such a storm as that which has swept Wall street. There are the small speculators who cast things overboard with reckless haste and at any sacrifice, and the crumbling prices, if continued far enough, never fail to find some large operators overloaded. The "tiding over" of these is less a matter of philanthropy than of self-interest, and the moment the natural recovery which follows on the heels of a violent collapse arrives, the securities of those "carried over" are sold, accounting for the "secondary liquidation" which is rarely ever absent from the stock market, after one of its violent breaks. Something of this nature Wall street apparently witnessed during the past week, which followed hard upon the recovery from Monday's lowest prices.

The present collapse in stock prices presents some features which also point strongly to its being more largely a psychological problem than anything else. General trade and industry are prosperous, railway earnings are maintained, bank clearances indicate abundant general activity, financial accommodation is freely accorded at easy rates and money is cheap, and harvest prospects are excellent. There have been enormous issues of securities, to be sure, but they have not been of the undigested type, and credit is not involved as on the former occasion.

The man with money in his bank, a policy in a life insurance company, or investments in properties, the earnings of which may be changed over night, or the corporation mulcted to purchase immunity, can scarcely avoid a feeling of disquietude when noting the tendencies of the times as presented to him by the current news of the day. It is not strange, therefore, that despite satisfactory fundamental conditions some competent men hesitate in giving their opinions as to the future of the stock market, and tinecture their conversation with pessimistic views. A higher standard of business and political morality would do much to restore the waning confidence of investors in the security market.

Only Small Producers Resulted from Oil Operations During Week

The week just closed, like the one preceding, failed to bring new and interesting developments in the oil fields of the lower southwest and Southeastern Ohio. Nothing better than small producers were the result of operations in the deep sand districts. The dry hole list got a considerable percentage of the completions. Development work in the deep territory has fallen off and will continue to do so as long as there is a possibility of the market going lower. It is well known that under present conditions the deep district cannot be operated at a profit. There is a considerable volume of that class of territory that has not been fully developed, but it is also known that nothing better than average producers can be hoped for at the undrilled locations.

The development in the 30-foot sand, west of Mannington, Marion county, W. Va., has been the only district that has attracted any attention for months and now it has been very fully defined and nothing remains but to more fully drill out the interior. Not more than one well is now drilling in the district where there were three at the first of the year. The old wells were drilled on a small acreage. The decline was rapid and now but three or four have a production of 100 or more barrels a day. Some of these wells now dropped from the list of 100-barrel producers had an initial production of from 500 to 800 barrels when first drilled into the sand six months ago.

The fourth and fifth sand development, near Fairview, same county, has been something of a feature for more than a year, but the late completions have been light and the district at this time has but a single well producing 100 barrels a day. During the past week the South Penn Oil Company completed a second test on the J. G. Haught farm and the indications are that it will make not better than a 5 or 10-barrel pumper. This was an old well drilled down from the Big Injun, otherwise it would be little less than a failure. To drill from the surface for small pumpers would not be profitable in that territory.

In the Gordon development, on Salem fork, in Ten Mile district, Harrison county, the wells are coming in light and the operators who took chances on town lot wells will not realize to any great extent on their investments.

On the Girls Industrial Home property, the Industrial Oil and Gas Company met with an unpleasant surprise when it drilled in its second test on that property during the week and got a very light pumper. The first test on this farm came in a very good producer and gave an impetus to operations in that locality. With the exception of town lots the territory in the vicinity had been previously leased so that those who wanted to operate could not get a lease larger than a town lot and took the risk. The result is that all of the late wells are coming in small and even these that made something of a showing at first have now declined and by the end of the year some will have been abandoned.

The Littleton, Smithfield and Pine Grove fields, in Wetzel county, are not bringing any better results than other districts. In the first and second there is an effort making to secure profitable producers in the lower or Gordon formation. Quite a number of the old wells that at one time produced from the Big Injun have been drilled down to the Gordon. A few have found oil in paying quantities in the lower sand. In a few instances strong gas has been encountered in the Gordon, and the wells have been turned over to some one of the gas companies, preventing a loss.

In those and other districts shooting the old wells is practiced with fairly good results. Some of these old producers when touched up respond in a way that is surprising. During the week the Kanawha Oil Company shot one of its old wells on the Mills tract and increased its production to more than 1,000 barrels a day.

Development work in the shallow sand districts was not fruitful of any good producers during the week, except in the Yellow Creek district, in Calhoun county. Four wells were completed and all but one producers, the best starting at 100 barrels a day. All are located inside of defined limits and aside from being producers are of no particular interest. There is a little work in advance of development under way in Calhoun county and the idea has not been abandoned that a new pool is not possible.

The Wick district, Tyler county, is the only shallow sand district that shows any life outside of Calhoun county. This district is still furnishing some very good wells inside of defined limits. The search for an extension to the development has not brought the desired results and the effort has been about abandoned.

Two wildcats were completed in Ritchie county during the week and both came in dusters. Along the river front in Wood county there is a little activity in the Cow Run sand territory. Some of the wells recently completed have been very creditable producers.

On the Ohio side operations are not having any better success than in the Little Mountain state. The best producer of the week was found in the Keener development, near New Matamoras, Monroe county. This is not new territory and the strike was something of a surprise. H. Lowrie & Co. drilled in their second test on the Mary E. West farm and at the Keener pay the well began to flow and produced 300 barrels the first 24 hours. It shows very creditable staying qualities and is by far the best producer in the southeastern Ohio fields. It does not open up anything new, being located only 500 feet from the first test on the same farm, which was a small producer.

A High-Class Bond Offer Issue.

The Municipal and Corporation Securities Company, which was incorporated some three years ago, is rapidly forging to the front as a conservative bond house. It now offers the unsold balance of the $2,500,000 West Penn Railways Company 5 per cent. tax free bonds at 101 and interest, a description of which appears in an advertisement in this issue. The purchase was made in conjunction with Messrs. N. W. Halsey & Co. of New York. The issue is a very attractive one, and has been largely subscribed for by Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, New York and country banks in Western Pennsylvania, and private investors—first, on account of its giving a return of 4.93 per cent net, and at the same time being readily convertible, as application to list the bonds has been made to the Pittsburgh, Philadelphia and Baltimore exchanges.

REVIEW OF THE WEEK IN THE LOCAL MARKETS

Business Was Generally Dull, but the Flour Situation Is Greatly Improved.

Dullness ruled the local markets in all lines last week and trade is not as good as it was the corresponding week a year ago. The last couple of days, however, business improved decidedly and there was more life along the street Thursday and Friday than for any day for some weeks.

The flour market seems to have settled after the recent smash in wheat and is now firm as the quotations given. Trade has improved decidedly, buyers figuring that there is no great risk in laying in a stock. At the mills the conditions are much better and a considerable export trade has already sprung up.

Canned goods were a ready sale all the week. Strawberries got very low-priced during the week, and were even retailing as low as two quarts for a quarter. The price advanced Friday and a $5 market was looked for Saturday, but instead the figure declined a little in the face of heavy shipments of fairly good stock.

HAY AND GRAIN.

Receipts of hay and grain Saturday were as follows: Pennsylvania lines, 25 cars hay, 1 car corn, 1 car corn and oats, 2 cars oats, 1 car feed. Pittsburgh & Lake Erie, 6 cars hay, 1 car corn, 3 cars oats. Baltimore & Ohio, 8 cars oats, 4 cars hay, 1 car corn, 1 car straw.

The week just closed has been a dull one in the hay and grain line, partially due to heavy receipts and partly to the small demand for goods. The belief is prevalent that business will improve after the exchange gets settled in its new home next week.

BIG INCREASE IN STEEL EXPORTS

Over Sixty Thousand Tons Sent Abroad from the Pittsburgh Mills Last Month.

TO ALL PARTS OF THE WORLD

THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE BUREAU,
Herald Building, Herald Square,
NEW YORK, May 7.

From the Pittsburgh district plants of the United States Steel Corporation last month upwards of 60,000 tons of steel billets, plates, beams, blooms, bars, hoops, rails, wire, wire nails and pipe were exported to various foreign countries through New York and other eastern seaboard points. These shipments were largely in excess of those made any month for nearly a year past.

The billet exports aggregated 22,084 tons during April. Twelve thousand and seventy-three tons went to Wales and 10,011 tons to English ports. The Welsh shipments went chiefly to Newport, where 10,543 tons were forwarded. Liverpool was sent 6,611 tons and Manchester 3,400 tons.

The rail shipments went principally to South America and Mexico. Eight thousand nine hundred and seventy-six tons were forwarded to the Argentine Republic, 880 tons to Brazil, and 812 tons to Chile. To Mexico 8,542 tons were shipped. Two thousand six hundred and fifty-two tons were forwarded to the United Kingdom, 2,490 tons of which went to Fleetwood, while Liverpool, London, Manchester and Belfast were also made consignments. To Australia 356 tons were sent. Panama was shipped 630 tons. Three hundred and ninety-five tons went to Zanzibar and South Africa was sent 195 tons.

About 5,000 tons of plates, beams, blooms, bars and hoops went abroad last month. One thousand eight hundred and thirty tons of steel plates went mainly to Sunderland, England. Other shipments were forwarded to Glasgow, Manila, Mexico, Australia and Brazil. About 2,000 tons of various structural material went in about equal proportions to Bombay, Sydney and Japan. Three hundred and seventy-one tons of wire, wire nails and pipe went abroad in April, Australia was the largest customer for wire. The pipe went largely to the European continent and Japan.

The wire exports amounted to 6,910 tons. Two thousand and twenty-one tons went to Australia. To South America ports 1,761 tons were forwarded, 954 tons going to the Argentine Republic and 807 tons to Brazil. To Europe 1,023 tons were forwarded, 877 tons of which went to ports in the United Kingdom—Bristol, Manchester, Glasgow, Hull, London, Belfast, Dublin and Liverpool. The continental ports of entry were Rotterdam, Christiania and Trondheim.

Three hundred and thirteen tons went to Mexico, 240 tons to Cuba, 212 tons to Japan, 204 tons to South Africa, while smaller lots went forward for Panama, Manila and Trebizonde, Turkey.

The nail exports represented a total of 2,347 tons last month. To Europe 1,032 tons were forwarded, 957 tons of which going to various British points—Bristol, Hull, London, Liverpool, Glasgow and Manchester. Copenhagen and Antwerp were the only ports of entry on the continent.

Five hundred and seventy-eight tons went to Australia. To Chile and the Argentina Republic 268 tons were forwarded, in about equal proportions. Japan was shipped 288 tons. Other lots went to Batavia, Dutch East Indies; Bombay, Kurrachee and Calcutta, British India; South Africa, Mexico and Singapore.

The foreign consignments of pipe amounted to 2,486 tons in April. The continent of Europe was shipped 1,186 tons. Antwerp took the bulk, 718 tons. Shipments were also made to Naples, Malmoe, Copenhagen, Gothenburg, Helsingsfors and Rotterdam. Only 164 tons went to England.

Six hundred and eighty-two tons were shipped to Kobe, Yokohama and other Japanese ports. Singapore was sent 282 tons and smaller lots went forward for Chile, Mexico, Australia and South Africa.

MONTHLY MAGAZINES MUST LOOK TO THEIR LAURELS

Sunday Gazette Is a Strong Competitor and Is Rapidly Encroaching Upon Their Field.

The great monthly magazines must look to their laurels. Those sections of the Sunday papers devoted to fiction and special articles are close at their heels, if not a little in advance. Each year brings startling changes for the better in this comparatively new phase of modern literature, and, needless to say, The Sunday Gazette is one of the strongest competitors of the monthlies. The Sunday Gazette aims to furnish not only all the news of the world, but also to add a spice of reading suited for all classes. So an inspection of the columns will reveal bright bits from the pens of versatile writers, scientific subjects treated in a masterly manner by men prominent in that particular field, and every tid-bit of news from the progress of the war in the far east and the doings in Morocco to the arrest of a Slav in a back alley in Woods Run. In substantiation of this claim one needs but peruse the columns of yesterday's great paper and learn the following:

The Russian admiralty regard Admiral Nebogatoff as the Blucher of the naval situation, and believe his bulldog courage and tenacity will arrest victory from Japan. Gen. Linevitch is being heavily pressed by Field Marshal Oyama and another great battle is probably imminent. The Spanish press is opposing the proposed visit of King Alfonso to Paris.

The cruiser St. Louis was successfully launched at Philadelphia. The Chicago strike has apparently passed its crisis. Friends of Senator Dick have advocated Andrew L. Harris for the Republican nomination for lieutenant governor of Ohio. The insurance commissioner is expected to probe the Wabash terminal bond syndicate, which was engineered by Equitable members. President Roosevelt rode a horse into Glenwood Springs, Col., his hunting trip having been brought to a close. It was rumored in Detroit that President Shaffer had been offered a federal position and might abandon his fight for re-election. The engagement of Capt. Richmond Pearson Hobson and Miss Grizelda Houston Hall was announced at Tuxedo Park, N. Y.

Columbus city officials gave up business for pleasure while in Pittsburgh. The Rev. Frank Chalfant, returned missionary from China, gave account of birth of steel industry in that country. Supreme court of Kansas decided the two cases against the Kansas Natural Gas Company in the company's favor. New Coaching club had its initial parade, which concluded at the Country club, where a merry party assembled. The Republican county committee is unanimously in favor of the postponement of the county primaries. Judge Young declared the law authorizing orphans' court judges to hear equity cases as constitutional. First and partial account of the Henry W. Oliver estate showed the executors charged themselves with $18,445,573, and had a balance on hand of $14,253,819 61. Solicitor Rodgers cannot speak for Mayor Hays at the banquet for the rivers and harbors committee and has passed the honor on to one of his assistants. Judge Kennedy suggested a compromise in the Block House litigation.

Dan McGann of the New Yorks is the leading batsman of the National league. Pirate sluggers are well up. Kramer of the Brunswick team is the champion bowler of the City league. Fine scores were made during the week. John Dernfrost of the Herron Hill Gun club shoots himself into the championship of Pennsylvania at Saturday's contest. Ring followers do not regard seriously Champion Jeffries' talk of retiring. Rain stopped the game between the Pittsburgh and Cincinnati teams with the score 3 to 2 in favor of Cincinnati, due to poor umpiring.

Strength in Northern Pacific and weakness in gas stocks were the features of the New York market. Prices for the entire list averaged lower. The weekly bank statement made a favorable showing. Wheat market was weak again.

A Royal Booklet.

The Grand Trunk Railway System are distributing a very handsome booklet descriptive of "The Royal Muskoka" Hotel, a beautiful resort on Lake Rosseau, in the Muskoka Lakes, "Highlands of Ontario." The publication is one giving a full description of the attractions that may be found at this popular resort, handsomely illustrated with colored prints of lake and island scenery, the hotel itself and many of the special features that may be found there. A glance through this booklet makes one long for the pleasures of summer or outdoor life, and copies may be secured gratuitously by applying to W. Robinson, T. P. A., 506 Park Building, Pittsburgh, Pa.

AMALGAMATED TO NOT ADOPT THE REFERENDUM

Movement Has Collapsed. President Shaffer to Make His Report Today.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

DETROIT, May 7.—There has been a collapse of the movement launched several months ago and which was thought to have made much headway to make this the last convention of the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers. It was proposed to elect officers, adopt a wage scale, and devise working conditions by the referendum vote, but the suggestion is becoming very unpopular and there is not the remotest possibility of it being adopted. Over a score of delegates were discussing the subject this evening and all were unanimous that the proposition could not be carried; that it was not practicable and that it would put a damper on the association's affairs if adopted.

The second week of the convention will open tomorrow morning and the hard work will then commence. The wage committee has finished its work, and as before stated, has recommended a $3 base for the puddling and a restoration of the 1903-1904 scale. The committee will submit its recommendations to the convention tomorrow afternoon.

President Shaffer is also expected to make his report sometime during the day, and it is awaited with the utmost interest. He will explain why the Carnegie Steel Company succeeded in starting some hoop plants on the non-union basis.

CONSCIENCE PRODS HIM.

Former Resident of Irwin Sends Money for Slippers He Stole from Merchant.

IRWIN, PA., May 7.—J. H. Over, a shoe dealer, yesterday received a letter from a town in California enclosing a $2 bill. The letter contained a scriptural quotation: "Having the promise, dearly beloved, let us cleanse our hands of all filthiness of flesh and spirit, perfecting holiness in fear of God. Receive us, we wronged no man; we have defrauded no man; we have corrupted no man." The letter then says: "I took two pairs of slippers out of your store, valued at 50 cents each. I did not resist the influence. The spirit of the living God commands me to pay for them and tell you I stole them. This is the redemption price I have to pay."

The writer is a well-known former resident of this vicinity. His present whereabouts was not known until his letter was received.
